

102 Students Get Diplomas At Lawrence

Dr. Gordon J. Laing, University of Chicago, Is Speaker

WEATHER IDEAL

Janet Riesberry, Medina, One of 3 to Win Highest Honors

Lawrence college graduated 102 seniors and conferred honorary degrees on four men, one of them the Rev. John B. Hanna of Appleton, at commencement in Memorial chapel this morning. Dr. Gordon J. Laing, dean emeritus of the division of humanities at University of Chicago, was the speaker.

Grant Wood, famous artist, Professor Leonard Keeler, director of the crime detection laboratory at Northwestern university, and Harold Bauer, concert pianist who has appeared here, were the other three men to receive honorary degrees. President Thomas N. Barrows made the presentations.

The four men receiving honorary degrees, members of the college faculty, and graduates lined up on the walk leading from Main hall to college avenue a few minutes before 10 o'clock. The weather was ideal for the academic procession, which moved into the crowded chapel as the organ pealed the "Triumphal March."

Dr. Laing, the four receiving honorary degrees, and faculty members walked upon the stage and the graduates filed into the front section of seats reserved for them. After the program was over, graduates and parents clustered on the lawn in front of the chapel. There were congratulations, smiles of pride, happiness and contentment on all sides. The seniors bade goodbye to their professors, and the professors extended their well wishes, parents beamed, and cars carrying black-robed young men and women, holding their diplomas, moved away.

Janet Riesberry of Medina was one of three students graduated summa cum laude, the highest academic honor Lawrence awards its seniors. The other two are Everett Bauman, Joliet, Ill., and Fern Monro, Wisconsin Rapids.

One Appleton student, Alan Adrian, and one Neenah student, Robert Mott, were among the five graduated magna cum laude. The others are Bonnie Bonthron, Oak Park, Ill., Ottilie Bueger, Mayville, and Jane Wood, Wauwatosa.

Graduate Cum Laude

Robert O'Neill and Carlyle Renner of Appleton and the following other students were graduated cum laude: Barbara Bartley, Western Springs, Ill.; Helen Peters, Chicago; Robert Arthur, Geneva, Ill.; Marjorie Hall, Aurora, Ill.; Margaret Hendrickson, Hinsdale, Ill.; Marian Humlekier, Fond du Lac; Rosemary Nielson, Antigo; Gay Patterson, Oak Park, Ill.; Perry Peterson, Rapid River, Mich.; Adele Sawyer, Milwaukee; Edna Eide, Elmhurst, Ill.; and Ellen Sweet, Wausau; Marian Limberg, Glenbeulah; and Betty Jane Winans, Glen Ellyn, Ill.

Miss Limberg and Miss Winans are two of the 15 students who were graduated this morning from Lawrence Conservatory of Music.

Besides conferring honorary degrees on the four men, President Thomas N. Barrows announced that Dr. John Brannard MacHarg, for 21 years a member of the Lawrence faculty, has been given the position of professor emeritus of history, with a master of arts, ad eundem. Dr. MacHarg was on leave of absence this year and his retirement will take effect with today's commencement.

Twenty-four Appleton students were among those who received their degrees this morning at the commencement, marked by the colorful academic procession and recession.

Dean Carl J. Waterman of Lawrence Conservatory of Music presented his students as they received their diplomas. Dean John S. Mills introduced the Lawrence graduates and Dr. Harry Lewis, dean of the Institute of Paper Chemistry, the

Seek Solution of Minorities Issue In Czechoslovakia

Pro-Nazis Win Overwhelming Victory in Sudeten German Vote

Praha, Czechoslovakia — (AP) — With the overwhelmingly pro-Nazi attitude of its 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans clearly demonstrated at the polls, this 20-year-old republic today approached what may be the most momentous decision since its foundation.

Czechoslovaks were not surprised when Konrad Henlein's Nazi-supported Sudeten German party polled an estimated 90.9 per cent of the total vote in German districts yesterday in the third of three Sundays of municipal elections.

They were more concerned with the outcome of discussions on the troublesome minorities question which will start tomorrow between the government and the Sudeten German party, in a triumphant mood as a result of the elections.

Only One Clash

Yesterday's elections passed quietly, the only serious disorder being at Maerisch-Schoenberg where five policemen and nine Henleinists were injured when police dispersed a victory parade celebrating a big Sudeten vote.

In Czech regions pro-government parties gained substantial majorities, which were interpreted as

Body of Fisherman Who Disappeared Sunday Found Early Today

Manawa—Milton Schuelke, 48, accidentally drowned while fishing on the Little Wolf river above the dam here yesterday afternoon. His body was found this morning following a search that continued almost all of last night.

Schuelke went fishing about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. George Beck, Manawa, noticed Schuelke's empty boat about 6 o'clock and spread the alarm. Sheriff Duncan Campbell of Waupaca county directed the search with a group of deputies and Manawa townsmen. The search was discontinued at 1 o'clock this morning and resumed about 3 o'clock. The body was found by Minor Wilson, Waupaca, who was searching in a boat with W. N. Simpson and Gordon Peterson, Waupaca.

Dr. John C. Johnson, Waupaca county coroner, was called and he said no inquest will be held.

Schuelke was employed as an automobile mechanic at Manawa for a number of years.

Four Honorary Degrees Given At Lawrence

Rev. John B. Hanna of Appleton Is Awarded Doctor of Divinity

CEREMONY AT CHAPEL

Leonard Keeler, Grant Wood, Harold Bauer Presented Titles

A minister, a criminologist, an artist, and a pianist were given honorary degrees by Lawrence college at commencement exercises this morning.

The Rev. John B. Hanna, pastor of First Congregational church in Appleton, was given the degree of Doctor of Divinity. Professor Leonard Keeler, brilliant young criminologist at Northwestern university, received a Doctor of Laws. Grant Wood, whose intensely American paintings have brought him fame, was honored with a Doctor of Fine Arts degree. Harold Bauer, accomplished concert pianist, was the recipient of a Doctor of Music.

The four men were presented to President Thomas N. Barrows by Dean John S. Mills.

In honoring the Rev. Mr. Hanna, President Barrows said: "Because of your robust and fearless championship of a better social order, of right living by the individual, and of peace and friendship among the nations, and because of your vigorous leadership of students toward a finer moral and spiritual life, we delight to number you among our alumni, and by the authority vested in me, I confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Divinity, honors causa, and admit you to all its rights and privileges."

Honors Wood

In conferring the degree upon Mr. Wood, President Barrows said: "Because as an American artist you have seen the beauty, too often ignored, of the commonplace American scene, and because of your vigor and originality in interpreting that beauty to your fellow men, we desire to honor you, and by the authority vested in me, I confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Arts, honors causa, and admit you to all its rights and privileges."

As he bestowed the Doctor of Laws degree on Professor Keeler, President Barrows said: "In recognition of your patient efforts and your brilliant achievements in bringing the resources of science into the service of law and order to the end that justice may

Duncan Starts Sentence Today

Surrenders at Office of Sheriff to Serve Term For Manslaughter

Milwaukee—(AP) — Accompanied by Otto Hauser, Mayor Hoan's secretary, and bearing a bag containing personal belongings, Thomas M. Duncan surrendered shortly after noon today to Sheriff Edward J. Mitten and prepared to start his one to two year term at the house of correction on a fourth degree manslaughter charge.

Duncan, who reached the end of a 10-day stay of execution of the sentence imposed on him June 3 by Circuit Judge G. N. Risjord of Ashland after his trial for the murder of Henry Schuetz last March 9, was greeted at the sheriff's office by Elmer Krahn, treasurer of the Milwaukee Leader.

He then waited in the office of Undersheriff Carl Pawinski to be transported in the "black maria" to the workhouse in mid-afternoon.

The failure of Duncan's attorneys, Benjamin Foss and Joseph Bratz to appeal Judge Risjord's verdict in the case was no surprise to many.

Crabb Faces New Trial In Shooting of Wife

Pekin, Ill.—(AP) — James Warren Crabb, 22-year-old banker's son, faced a new trial today on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of his pretty young bride, Betty Collison Crabb.

After "deliberating" nearly 35 hours, a jury that heard the first trial was discharged at midnight Saturday when it was unable to reach a verdict. Foreman John Essig said 35 ballots were taken.

The state charged that James shot his wife during a scuffle over a pistol. The defense contended she committed suicide.

State's Attorney Rayburn L. Russell announced that the case would be retried.

Workers' Alliance Not To Support Third Party

Milwaukee—(AP) — The new National Progressive party of Governor Philip LaFollette had before it today the statement of Herbert Benjamin of Washington, D. C., secretary of the Workers' Alliance of America, that the alliance would not support the NPA.

Benjamin addressed the alliance state convention Saturday night. "Experience has taught us," he said, "the need for unity of labor and progressive forces. Anyone who undertakes, whatever his pretext, to destroy that unity naturally arouses our suspicion."

He urged the alliance to support "genuine New Dealers."

Harlan Conspiracy Trial Halted When Juror Becomes Ill

London, Ky.—(AP) — The Harlan labor conspiracy trial was recessed today until tomorrow because W. D. Johnson, a juror, became ill.

Federal Judge H. Church Ford noticed the juror, a Whitley county farmer, had become pale and halted proceedings. A deputy marshal led Johnson from the room and Dr. J. W. Crook ordered him to bed. He said Johnson was suffering from a "nervous disorder," but that he did not believe his condition was serious. He is one of the regular jurors. Two alternate jurors also have been hearing the evidence.

When the recess was taken Henry A. Schweinhaut of government counsel was reading the responses of the 20 coal company defendants in an effort to show they are engaged in interstate commerce.

Proof of that contention is essential to the prosecution's case. The companies, together with 44 individuals, are charged with conspiring, in violation of the Wagner act, to deprive miners of their right to organize. An effect on interstate commerce must be established to make the act applicable.

Court Refuses to Quash Indictment In Waukesha Case

Proceed to Draw Jury to Try Judge Evans on Perjury Charge

Waukesha—(AP) — Circuit Judge Jesse Earle denied today a motion to quash an indictment charging Municipal Judge David M. Evans with perjury.

The court then proceeded with drawing of a jury to try Evans on this indictment, first of four returned against him by the county grand jury before which he testified.

The indictment charges Evans told the grand jury he had a slot machine but kept it in his home at all times, but that in fact he permitted a slot machine operator to install it in a tavern.

Prospective jurors were kept out of the courtroom while Judge Earle heard arguments on the motion.

Defense Attorney William H. Churchill, Milwaukee, centered his 40-minute argument on two points: first, that the indictment did not cite facts sufficient to state an offense; and second, that the matter on which Evans was testifying was not material to the grand jury probe. Churchill asserted the indictment did not accuse Evans of lying or knowingly swearing falsely.

Special Prosecutor Roland Steingard, Milwaukee, asserted the language of the indictment followed the statute closely and that the state would prove the questioning was material to the grand investigation.

Other indictments pending against Judge Evans charge him with altering court records, larceny as bailie and being a patron of a house of ill fame.

Major Facing Charge Of Killing His Wife

Columbus, Ga.—(AP) — Major John R. Brooke, Jr., paced a cell in the Muscogee county jail today, awaiting a federal grand jury hearing of charges he killed his 42-year-old wife, Elizabeth.

United States Commissioner N. A. Brown bound him over Saturday to a jury scheduled to convene June 27 on a complaint sworn out by Federal Agent J. W. Vincent.

Major Brooke, stockily built instructor at the Ft. Benning Infantry school south of Columbus, had been detained since the body of his wife, her skull fractured, was found at the foot of a sawmill in their post quarters last Wednesday.

He observed his forty-fifth birthday anniversary in jail yesterday.

Farmers, Business Men Searching for Child

Pine River, Minn.—(AP) — A searching party of nearly 400 farmers and business men beat through rough, swampy brushlands near here today seeking 4-year-old Dick Haily Ware, who vanished Saturday.

Constable B. L. Shiffer of Pine River said the boy's footprints had been found about two miles from his father's home of Richard Ware. The father and that searchers believed the lad was still alive.

Carrying lanterns, flashlights and torches, and aided by a full moon, the posse continued the search all last night, battling swarms of mosquitoes that rose from the swamps and brooks and infested the underbrush.

U. S. Won't Curtail Activities of Warships on Yangtze, Japanese Told

Shanghai—(AP) — The United States government today informed Japan it had no intention of curtailing the activities of American warships on the Yangtze river to clear the path for the Japanese drive toward Hankow.

The warships, Washington told the Japanese through Admiral Harry E. Yarnell and Frank P. Lockhart, consul general at Shanghai, there to protect American lives and property.

It was learned authoritatively that Lockhart, in replying to a warning from Masayuki Tani, Japanese ambassador-at-large in China, pointed out that the warships would continue to be sent anywhere deemed necessary to carry on their protective duties.

Commission Is Hit as Buckman Plea Is Denied

Judge Says Public Service Body Should Have Clarified Law

WON'T GRANT STAY

Three Officials of Madison Firm Will Enter Prison Tomorrow

Milwaukee — (AP) — Circuit Judge Walter Schinz censured the state public service commission today after denying a two-week stay for B. E. Buckman, president of the insolvent Madison investment firm bearing his name, who is under sentence of one to three years in state prison for violating the state securities law.

Judge Schinz declared the commission, which administered the law during the period three Buckman officials sold unregistered securities, should have acted to clarify the law so as to leave no room for dispute over "agency" transactions and what constitutes "solicitation."

After Attorney General O. S. Loomis told the court the Buckman officials had been "trifling with justice for a long time," Judge Schinz said:

"The blue sky laws should have been clarified a long time ago. The attorney general says that the defendants trifled with justice for a long time. It is not that true because an opportunity was given to them to trifle with justice by the inactivity of the state department charged with the duty of enforcing the law."

"There was opportunity for the state to suggest amendments making the law clear, provide for a supreme court decision and for regulation."

"There was a call for action by the state in both regulation and interpretation. Where was the department all these years? The state is still without a clear cut decision on the issue of solicitation in the sale of securities."

Enter Prison Tuesday

As a result of the court's ruling, Buckman is scheduled to enter the prison at Waupun at 1 o'clock tomorrow.

Grand Jury Action Is Delayed in Cash Case

Miami, Fla.—(AP) — A special grand jury was empaneled today to consider evidence against Franklin Pierce McCall in connection with the kidnap-slitting of James Bailey Cash, Jr., but illness of State Attorney George A. Worley delayed action on the case until tomorrow.

The jury elected a foreman and took up other matters presented by an assistant prosecutor.

Circuit Judge H. F. Atkinson in his charge made no specific reference to the kidnapping, telling the jurors they were to "consider such major felonies as have been committed."

An uncle of McCall whose name was not disclosed arrived from Jasper, Fla., today to visit him. He was the first case until tomorrow.

Agents announced he had confessed the single-handed abduction of "Skeegie" Cash.

The blue-eyed, sandy-haired boy, 34-year-old, was snatched from his crib in Princeton May 28. Twelve days later his pajama-clad body was found in a palm-tree thicket barely a mile from his home.

Roosevelt Praises Advertising Slogan

Detroit — (AP) — The Advertising Federation of America received praise from President Roosevelt for its slogan "advertising makes work."

At business sessions of its thirty-fourth annual convention opened here today.

"Your convention theme," advertising makes work, is a great significance," said a message of greeting from the president. "Recovery will be accelerated and human happiness promoted in proportion to the spread of purchasing power through the employment of our workers in gainful pursuits."

"Certainly, if advertising is to render the maximum of constructive service, it is fundamental that truth be the watchword and that every claim be supported by the highest standard of business ethics. I believe the leaders in this field sense their opportunity for promoting social and economic progress through trustworthy service."

Japs Regret Menacing Lives of Americans

Hong Kong — (AP) — Japan today expressed regret that the lives of American members of the staff of American-owned Chinese universities had been endangered and a Chinese employer of the university had been killed in Japanese air raids on Canton.

This was contained in a note transmitted to Addison E. Southard, United States consul-general here, by the Japanese consulate-general, replying to Southard's protest against the raid on June 8, during which three bombs fell on the university campus.

The reply repeated previous requests that American property be identified by flags prominently displayed on the roofs.

Similar notes handed British authorities and the French consul-general here said their complaints against Japanese planes, flying over the British and French concessions on Shumoen island, Canton, were being investigated.

These replies said Japanese fliers were being instructed again to avoid such flights.

Congress Term to End by Wednesday Night, Barkley Says

Gold Prospector Finds Wreckage Of Missing Plane

Also Locates Bodies of Occupants Near Top of 9,000-Foot Peak

Yosemite, Calif. — (AP) — A young gold prospector who followed a "hunch" led the way today to wreckage of a storm-crashed TWA airliner which vanished with nine persons aboard the night of March 1.

The shattered plane and the bodies of its occupants lay near the top of 9,000-foot Buena Vista peak, 18 air miles south and east of Yosemite valley ranger headquarters. The region, one of the wildest in the Sierra Nevada, is 90 miles east of Fresno.

H. O. Collier, 24, a mining prospector from Fresno, told Chief Ranger Forest Townsley he found the ship Sunday morning. Eight bodies were scattered nearby, said Collier.

As evidence he had found the plane, Collier produced an aviator's cap with the TWA insignia and a brief case stamped with the name of H. M. Salisbury of Kansas City, TWA co-pilot and a passenger on the ship.

Vanished in Storm

The airliner vanished in one of the worst California storms in several decades. Pilot John Graves had abandoned efforts to fly eastward over the Sierra at Albuquerque, N. M. He also had been balked in an attempt to fly southward to Burbank, Calif., and finally had turned northward hoping to return to San Francisco.

A radio message was received when the ship was near Fresno. Shortly afterward the plane disappeared. For weeks planes and searching parties sought it vainly.

Those aboard were:

Passengers—J. Tracy Dirlam, 22, Mansfield, Ohio, a Stanford university student; Mary Lou Dirlam, 18, his sister; Victor Krause, Lin-

Five Persons Die In Auto Accidents

Many Others Injured in Collisions on Wisconsin Roads

By the Associated Press

Five persons died in collisions on Wisconsin highways in motorizing mishaps over the weekend and many more were injured in the numerous auto collisions which occurred on crowded country roads. The dead:

Ralph Jackson, St. Paul, Minn.

Ignatius Mattonavitch, 60, St. Paul.

Moederndorfer died yesterday in Waukesha Municipal hospital of a fractured skull suffered when the automobile in which he was riding near Prospect hill in Waukesha county skidded into a ditch.

Vandeheiden died today in a hospital at Waupun after the car he was driving near Burnett in Dodge county yesterday struck a moving Milwaukee road freight train. Miss Rachel Anderson, a passenger, was injured.

The Panake boy darted in front of a truck near his parents home on Highway 50 last night and was struck and killed.

Jackson was killed in a head-on collision yesterday near Spooner. Six others from Hayward, Wis., were injured.

Hurled from his car as it was forced off Highway 12 near New Lisbon yesterday, Mattonavitch was killed. The driver of the other car is being sought.

Sterling, 61-year-old career diplomat, is in Washington. His last assignment was as minister to Estonia and Latvia.

He has been in the foreign service since 1911 and has served in various European countries, China, and South America.

Strike Settlement May Save Half Spinach Crop

Milwaukee — (AP) — Half the spinach crop of Racine and Kenosha counties it was estimated today, could be saved because of settlement of the strike of the Cannery Workers' Union (A. F. of L.) at the Frank Pure Food company plant at Franksville, Racine county. Settlement was reached Saturday at the Milwaukee office of the state labor board, ending a seven-week strike which resulted in many farmers plowing under their spinach crop. Union officials said under the contract no worker would have to take more than a 5 cent per hour wage cut.

Admits Share in Burglary in Which Officer Was Slain

Prisoner Confesses More Than Twenty Raids In Two States

Chicago — (AP) — Sergeant Andrew Aitken said last night Carl Wagener, 34, had confessed more than twenty safe robberies in Illinois and participation in a burglary attempt in which a policeman was shot to death in La Crosse, Wis.

Wagener was seized Saturday in a north side rooming house and admitted, Aitken said, he obtained about $10,000 in burglaries during the last year.

Aitken said Wagener had been sought since policeman Joseph Donnellinger was slain in LaCrosse last Dec. 5 when he was shot by Floyd Wagener, cousin of Carl, during a chase. Donnellinger was pursuing Floyd after the latter had kidnapped another officer who arrested him for a traffic violation.

Aitken said three men had been preparing to "crack" the safe in the LaCrosse Sears and Roebuck store the day Donnellinger was shot.

One Serving Life Term

Floyd is serving a life sentence in prison at Waupun, Wis., the sergeant said. Robert Pond awaits trial at LaCrosse in the case, he said.

Wagener, who gave his home address as Racine, Wis., told Aitken he served a term in the Waupun prison for burglary, and was freed in 1934.

Aitken said Wagener admitted obtaining $500 in currency and $6,700 in checks by opening a safe in county treasurer's office in Merrill, Wis., and looting the Chicago and North Western railroad station in Eagle River, Wis.

He confessed also, Aitken said, looting safes in stores and taverns in Elgin, Waukegan, Alton, Bloomington, Granite City and Jacksonville, Ill., and in Racine and Rhinelander, Wis.

Police indicated Wagener probably would be returned to Wisconsin for prosecution.

Arguments in High Court Next Week In Phone Rate Case

Madison — (AP) — The state supreme court is scheduled to hear arguments next week on the contention of the public service commission that Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann adopted the written recommendations of company attorneys in deciding the Wisconsin Telephone company rate case.

Two appeals are pending before the high court.

In one the commission is contesting Judge Hoppmann's decision which set aside rate reductions of more than $800,000 a year. About $4,000,000 of rate cuts dating back to 1932 are involved.

The second appeal, which was made by the company, is on the reduction of the utility's depreciation charges for upkeep of its property. While Judge Hoppmann vacated the commission's orders for rate reductions, he sustained, in the same decision, its order to lower the depreciation rate about $700,000 a year. Depreciation charges, in part, determine the valuation on which rates are based.

No 'New' Railroad Legislation, Senate Leader Avers

WAGE BILL FIRST

Relief and Deficiency Measures Also to Be Considered

Washington—(AP) — A joint conference committee agreed late today on a compromise draft of the administration's multi-billion dollar relief bill.

Washington—(AP) — Senate Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) told reporters after a conference with President Roosevelt today that congress would adjourn Wednesday without enacting "any new" railroad legislation.

"Since we expect to adjourn not later than Wednesday night we do not contemplate that there will be any new railroad legislation this session," Barkley said.

The Democratic leader said specifically that a bill to liberalize Reconstruction Corporation loans to railroads was not on the program to be completed before adjournment.

That measure once was reported to the senate by its banking committee, but was sent back to committee when the railroads proposed a 15 per cent wage cut.

The White House conference was attended by Vice President Garner, Speaker Bankhead and Representative Rayburn (D-Texas), the house majority leaders.

Wage Bill Big Issue

Abandonment of rail legislation would leave enactment of wage-hour legislation as the key to adjournment.

Other measures on which action must be completed before the session ends are the relief bill and a deficiency appropriation bill. No delay in action on them is anticipated by congressional leaders.

In asserting congress would adjourn Wednesday night, Barkley said this could be done "unless there is a hookup we don't foresee."

Opposition of railroad unions to the RFC lending bill has kept it in the senate committee. Although Barkley said no effort would be made to pass the measure, informed senators said they understood the Railway Labor Executives association would meet tomorrow to reconsider their opposition.

The senate interstate commerce committee reported favorably this morning a bill to create a separate system of unemployment compensation for railroad workers.

Informed persons said that if this legislation could be enacted the brotherhoods probably would withdraw their opposition to the lending bill.

The wage-hour bill will come before the house tomorrow. Members were expected to take little time to discuss the merits of the compromise, formally approved Sunday by 14 senators and representatives perspiring in 95-degree heat.

106,000 Killed In Accidents in 1937 in America

Nearly 10 Million Persons Disabled During Year, Report Shows

Chicago—(P)—The National Safety Council announced today that accidents claimed 106,000 lives in 1937—a total more than twice as great as the number of American lives lost in the World war.

Injuries from accidents' disabled 9,900,000 persons during the year—at least one number of every fourth family.

The calculable cost of all accidents ran to $3,600,000,000 which, the council said, was enough to build 75 Empire State buildings.

Motor vehicle accidents during 1937 caused 39,500 deaths, 1,360,000 personal injuries and an economic loss of $1,700,000,000. The traffic fatalities represented a 4 per cent increase over 1936.

Economic costs competed for all accidents included wage losses, anticipated future earnings, medical expenses, overhead costs of insurance and property damage in fires and motor-vehicle accidents.

The number of accidental deaths per 100,000 population decreased 4 per cent during 1937. The council said the decrease was attributable almost entirely to a drop in the number of excessive death fatalities. In the summer of 1936 a total of 4,676 deaths were placed in the accident category, while less than 1,000 occurred in the summer of 1937.

Motor Vehicle Fatalities

Twenty-two states had fewer motor vehicle deaths in 1937 than 1936, while 33 states had lower death rates based on mileage. The council reported there were 108 motor vehicle deaths in the nation every day of the year, and that if accidents continued during 1938 at the same rate as 1937, one in every 13 persons will be injured or killed.

There were approximately 19,500 persons killed in work accidents last year, the council's report said. This was an increase of 1,000 deaths or 5 per cent, from the 1936 total. Safety council experts said the increase was due primarily to more employment in 1937, representing greater total exposure to accident hazards.

A reduction of from 4 to 10 per cent in the number of accidents in the age group below 15 and above 25 was noted in 1937. An increase of 7 per cent in the death rate was shown for the age group 15 to 24 years. This group showed a 24 per cent death rate, increase from 1936 to 1937, second only to the age group 65 years and over, which had an increase of 33 per cent.

The safety record of children was a bright spot in the national accident picture. Traffic deaths of children under 15 years decreased from 4,350 in 1936 to 4,150, while adult deaths increased from 32,749 to 35,430. The death rate of children under 15 years dropped 8 per cent from 1936 to 1937.

Measles Heads List Of County Contagion

Press Search for Missing Vassar Student; Mother Knows Whereabouts

Wausau—(P)—Grant Ford, chief engineer of the Wisconsin Public Service corporation, said today his daughter Jane, 19, who disappeared from the Vassar college campus a week ago, had been located at Allentown, Pa.

Ford said he talked with her by long distance telephone this afternoon, and that she would return to Vassar. He said she had started by bicycle from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., site of Vassar college, to St. Louis, but that he did not know why she had left the school.

Wausau—(P)—Search for Jane Grant Ford, 19-year-old Vassar sophomore from Wausau, was being pressed today in New York, St. Louis and Chicago, complicated by the statement of her mother at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., that she knew the whereabouts of the girl but would not disclose it.

Grant Ford, chief engineer of the Wisconsin Public Service corporation, and president of the Wausau Vocational Board of Education, yesterday enlisted the aid of Police Chief Walter English in locating his daughter.

Roosevelt Has Had Way Despite Some Compromise

Bloc of Independent Voters Could End Wasteful Spending, Lawrence Says

Washington—As the congress moves toward adjournment, it is worth while noting that, in the main, President Roosevelt has had his way even though he has had to adjust and compromise here and there and take heed of discordant notes within the Democratic party.

The one outstanding defeat—the failure of the bill to reorganize the executive department—has been a disappointment to the Democratic party.

Lawrence

To put it another way, there is a majority in both houses of congress today.

To put it another way, there is a majority in both houses of congress today ready to vote against Mr. Roosevelt on a vital issue if a substantial number of voters back home actually organize themselves into an influential force behind the congressional group. The administration knows this. Indeed, so disturbed did the Roosevelt leaders become over the activities of the national committee to uphold constitutional government that they revived the meetings of the senate "lobby" committee and did everything possible to weaken the constitutionalists' efforts by the characteristic "smear" process which the New Deal warriors use in political combat nowadays.

No Nation-Wide Group

There was no nation-wide organization against the spending bills, no nation-wide organization insisting that relief be kept free from politics, and no nationally aggressive group calling for an end to 1-man government. Roosevelt has had a substantial majority to work with in both houses on "most every" thing because the citizenry have not become sufficiently aroused for specific items or to band themselves together on a few outstanding measures which a Democratic-Republican combination in congress could unite to defeat.

There have been frequent meetings on the part of a Republican-Democratic coalition in the senate, but without a powerful and militant public sentiment, the little band found itself ineffective. Even the Republicans in the group began to worry about the attitude of some of their Republican brethren back home of the organization kind who felt that the fight should be a straight-out party fight.

Now, there is no short-cut to political power nowadays for any group, and as for the Republican party, it will gradually and very slowly draw back its feet. Little Republicans who voted for Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936, but by the time of the autumn elections this year, it is conceded that the Republican strength nationally will not be sufficient to gain control of the house of representatives.

So the citizen who wants to see a stop to wasteful spending, and an end to the manipulation of government funds for political purposes—save majorities which can draw support from Democrats as well as Republicans—must either be content to wait two or four or even six years for the Republican party to be reconstructed, or else he must find some means of expressing himself along with other independent voters so as to exercise a sort of check on Democrats as well as Republicans in the senate and the house.

NEC Council

Mr. Roosevelt has formed through the National Emergency council and with treasury funds the "federal bloc"—an officeholders' organization consisting now of virtually all the federal agencies—and the operations of government agencies extend to the influencing of party nominations as well as the final elections. If the citizens had an independent bloc, they could influence the voters of members of congress at all times and not just when there was a single issue raised. Thus, all the work done by the national committee to uphold constitutional government to get voters to telegraph members of congress to defeat the executive reorganization bill or the supreme court bill would have been much more lasting if it could have been applied to the formation of what might be called the Independent Voters League. The principle is not new in American politics. Such organizations as the American Federation of Labor and the Anti-Saloon league have employed the system of bipartisan activity very effectively in between national campaigns. Such organizations do not necessarily conflict with party organizations, but often buttress them. Five million voters could wield the balance of power in national elections.

Michigan Faces Funds Problem

Relief Needs Grow as Revenues Show Decline in State

Lansing, Mich.—(P)—Like any thrifty housewife faced with a reduction in the periodic pay check, the state of Michigan is stretching every tax dollar in an effort to make both ends meet.

The state's plight, on a grand scale is much the same as that of many individuals — income curtailed by "hard times" and expenditures mounting because there are so many hungry mouths to feed.

The state has had hungry relief dependents by the thousands and officials to scrape together from various sources—including borrowings from next year's funds $8,500,000, an amount which is approximately one-half of the estimated deficit as of June 30, the end of a fiscal year.

The business recession not only increased Michigan's relief load. It caused a shrinkage in state revenues. The greatest loss to the state was the decline in returns from the sales tax, which are running 20 per cent below the figure for year ago. The sales tax alone is expected to account for a $7,000,000 loss in anticipated state revenues.

Michigan's deficit for the current fiscal year is expected to reach $13,800,000. Estimated obligations are $115,800,000 and estimated receipts are only $102,000,000. A year ago the deficit was $900,000, with legislative appropriations of $95,500,000 and available receipts totalling $94,600,000.

Some state officials are saying that in another year the deficit will be $21,000,000.

rolment of voters, but the trouble with that organization was that it emanated from wealthy men who contributed heavily to it and thus it became an easy target for New Deal attack. A nation-wide organization of independent voters contributing from $1 to $100 apiece and with no contributions above that sum allowed would be free from the objections leveled heretofore. Likewise, no matter how the movement was bombarded by the New Deal "smear" bombs, the fact that such an independent group insisted on honesty in elections and eradication of graft and crookedness in federal politics would make its appeal effective with the rank and file of American citizens who want above all things to maintain democratic principles of honesty and fairness in the conduct of government, believing that no "reforms" supposedly in the public interest are worth getting at the expense of umoral procedures.

Such a bloc of independent voters need not ally itself with the reactionary groups in the Republican party who blindly believe that without yielding an inch to social progress, they will be the simple beneficiaries of New Deal blunders, nor need there be any hesitancy to support liberal Democrats who have had the courage to make a fight against dictation by the man who would be boss of the party. The bloc could pledge its members to vote for Democrats in some states and Republicans in others, moving from side to side in each election, punishing the crooked and the grafters who misuse taxpayers' money for selfish political purposes and upholding the men, irrespective of party, who stand for decent government. An independent voters league could remake both major parties by sheer force of numbers and the decency of its platform.

Until some such coalition group is organized, the New Deal will control future congresses pretty much as it has the one which is about to adjourn.

Series of Weekly Meetings Ended At White House

Congress Leaders Conferred With President on Major Questions

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt and his congressional leaders came to the end today of an experiment in cooperation—weekly meetings at which they surveyed the legislative program and the temper of the senate and house.

Nearly every Monday morning since the 1933 session began the group has gathered in an upstairs study at the White House. Their sessions have largely replaced the work of "go-between" who used to carry the president's desires to individual congressmen. The attendees at these legislative conferences are Vice President Garner, Democratic Leaders Barkley of the senate, Speaker Bankhead and Democratic Leader Rayburn of the house.

The president is understood usually to have had the final word, but advice of the legislative chiefs has prevailed in many instances. The wringings of Rayburn and Barkley for example, recently caused postponement of the government reorganization bill until next year.

"Very Frank" Talks

Discussion in all the conferences, Rayburn said in an interview today, has been "very frank and very candid." "What we had every week was an exchange of views, and it was a full exchange," he said. "Everybody spoke freely."

The conference method of determining the administration's legislative plans, Rayburn declared, was well liked by all five men. It also won approval in the capitol, he said, because the members "felt somebody up here knew what was going on."

As a result, the sessions probably will be resumed when a new congress meets in January.

In the current session, leaders have been informed constantly of "downtown" developments and they themselves have conducted the maneuvers in behalf of the president's program. No "liaison men" were in evidence during the consideration of the reorganization bill, the relief and public works bill and the wage-hour bill. During the court fight last year the situation was quite the reverse. Mr. Roosevelt presented his proposal without giving notice to congressional leaders. Then, between the White House and the capitol trudged such bearers of presidential views as Charles West, who recently resigned as undersecretary of interior; Joseph B. Keenan, the assistant to the attorney general; James Roosevelt, the president's son and secretary, and Thomas G. Corcoran, RFC attorney and presidential adviser.

Fire Causes $700 Damage to Garage

Blaze Is Caused by 2 Boys Playing With Matches Sunday Afternoon

Belching smoke from a burning garage at the home of Gerald Galpin, 1203 N. Superior street, furnished excitement for several hundred persons about 4:30 yesterday afternoon.

The fire, which caused damage estimated at $700, was caused by two boys who were playing with matches. Firemen quickly brought the blaze under control.

Firemen were called out twice early this morning. The first alarm was answered at 2:30 to the home of Joseph Weber, 230 S. Oak street. A flatiron set fire to a table top, and the fire was put out before firemen arrived.

The second alarm was to the home of Theodore Ledbetter, 210 N. Bennett street, where a gasoline stove flooded and set fire to a wall. Little damage resulted.

Dictator Papers Have Lots of Power for Evil

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—I could go on and on about the freedom of the press. We have had some rogue publishers in our journalism—but the very worst—and you may name your pet abomination—never had the audacity and the power for evil that are presented in the situation I'm going to describe.

A political demagogue and dictator rises to power as the boss of a state machine and starts a little sheet on a job press under a personalized masthead and a slogan promising to make of every man a king or to give somebody $5,000—or something like that. He hammers away at his political opponents and at the orthodox or conventional papers without regard for the liberal restrictions which handcuff the other side, because he is, as they say in the business, libel-proof. He hasn't so much as a typewriter by way of physical plant or an attachable dime of money. I don't mean that he hasn't got a dime. I mean a dime that can be attached. There is a great difference. And, of course, nobody wants to go to the gutter with him on a charge of criminal libel, because there is always the danger that he will prove it on you or prove something else just as embarrassing. Old Jim Watson's remark that nobody even won a fight with a skunk applies here.

Well, for the first few weeks he throws his paper away free, but meanwhile the boys of the organization are soliciting subscriptions with the old blackjack. Every jobholder in the state organization has to pay $2.50 or $4, or whatever, and every one of these is required to hustle a certain number of other subscriptions, the individual quotas being based on the individual's public pay. Do you get the idea? If the individual employee can sell subscriptions to his friends, all right. But if he can't he has to buy them himself as a tax on his job.

And, of course, all the contractors who sell concrete and office supplies, tile, prison provisions, school books, pipe organs and hand instruments to the state government or to local governments controlled by the state machine buy subscriptions, too, so that in a comparatively short time your struggling little paper, shouting the battle cry of freedom, has a swell net paid-in-advance circulation. And now, when the other papers blast him, he blasts back that they are just jealous of his success in journalism and abusing their press prerogative to attack a business rival. If this is freedom of the press, says he, this coloration and distortion of the news, these reckless, insulting charges that his faithful, voluntary subscribers have been coerced, then, by God, he doesn't know but that, after all, maybe the freedom of the press ought to be curtailed or, anyway, entrusted only to publishers who have a sense of responsibility and fairness.

For revenue he is doing fine. As a boss of the state in harmony with the national administration, he counts the WPA workers and employees of other federal activities among his fold, and, of course, all the contractors and supply men doing business in these fields react the same as those who do business with the state.

Pegler Likes Commercial American Press Better

And there is the advertising. The contractors and supply men all buy space, and manufacturers and merchants find it wise to do the same, not only in the political sense but from the practical viewpoint, because—no kidding—the sheet does have circulation. Never mind how it got the circulation. It's there, paid in advance. Municipalities and counties, water districts, utility companies, even state lunatic asylums and colleges buy advertising in the dictator's paper, and the free press privilege runs for him because you could no more afford to suppress him, even knowing all about his methods, than you could afford to suppress the most ethical paper in the land, whatever that may be.

When the national dictatorships develop in countries which go haywire the dictators and sub-dictators are the men who own the prosperous official papers, Mussolini, for instance, and Goering and Strasser.

I like the commercial American press better.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

A few weeks ago, in "Town and Country," that notably astute chron-icler of the more lunatic faubourgs, Alice Leona Moates, made a list of the ways to get one's self recognized in the Manhattan midst: The affection of fancy clothes, the permanent occupation of a restaurant site, irrevocable residency in the Plaza, flattery of photographers and such devices. Although her entire classification of personalities, generally speaking, might come under this head, she specifically failed to nominate the limited but spectacular group who exist through no other agency than that of making a scene. There is, as will occur to any one on a moment's reflection, a small but spirited group of persons not unknown, at least to the mutable fame of photographers' mentions, for the manner in which they contrive to invent their every action, no matter how trivial, with a positively regal pretentiousness, and whose careers are one long struggle to achieve attention by the arrangement of public spectacles involving themselves. Perhaps the most naive gratification of the urge to get noticed is the ordering in restaurants of crepes suzettes or other gustatory Paine's fireworks exhibits. A secondary stage of the same compulsion is the commanding of sparkling wine at luncheon, an indication at once expensive, ostentatious and indicative of a militant intention of not going back to the office at all. There are, too, less ingenious ways of swishing into the general ken. There was the celebrated youth around town a short time since who, against all the laws of probability, had come into possession of a $100 bill, and who got around for some weeks on the preposterous business of offering it to taxi drivers to be changed for a 30-cent ride. There is the something less than important society reporter for an afternoon paper who exists by putting the arm on restaurant proprietors for meals and makes a tremendous spectacle over not speaking to other reporters in public places. There is the select group who, never having been solicited for a photograph in their lives, make a great show of indignation and outraged privacy when a photographer gets within twenty feet of them in a night club. The invention of flash bulbs has made their whole life a career of insulting neglect. There are the folk who find themselves mentioned in Dwight Fiske's lyrics and who occupy ringside tables night after night, no matter how unflattering Dwight's references may be. There are the fat old frauds in the Biltmore Turkish Baths who make a practice of going down on Saturday afternoons so they can wave a wet mitt and shout "Good afternoon, General," at Mr. Farley, who has never seen them before or since. Miss Moates should do an exhaustive magazine piece on the art of living by creating scenes, and we'll give her the idea gratis, or

Record Peacetime Defense Program Passed This Term

Woodring Says Legislation Most Important Since World War

Washington—(P)—A record-breaking peacetime program for expanding Uncle Sam's national defenses stood out today as a major accomplishment of the 1938 congress.

Secretary Woodring told house leaders that more important legislation to strengthen the country's armed services had been enacted this year than at any time since the World war.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the house naval committee commented: "It will do more to promote peace, too, than anything else we have done."

Direct appropriations totaling more than 1,000,000,000 were voted to run the army and navy for the next fiscal year. Congress also authorized a billion-dollar increase in the size of the navy, causing officials to declare it would become the most powerful, if not the biggest, fleet.

The navy will be able to add 46 warships and 26 auxiliary vessels to its previous top strength. Nine hundred and fifty additional naval airplanes can be acquired, and a "mystery fleet" of swift coastal patrol boats and subchasers can be developed.

Add to Manpower Congress already has given the navy funds to start 18 of the warships—two battleships, two cruisers, eight destroyers and six submarines. A bill carrying additional money for two more battleships and two light cruisers is pending in the senate.

More officers and enlisted men to man the new ships as well as additional officers for the army air corps were authorized.

A total of seven auxiliary vessels, in which the navy is coming deficient, can be started in the coming fiscal year. They include seaplane, destroyer and submarine tenders, oil tankers, tugs and mine-sweepers.

A $6,000,000 appropriation for new anti-aircraft equipment also received congressional approval. It will be used principally for units which can be moved about at high speed, thus affording protection for a greater number of ships.

Contract already have been let by the army for some of the most powerful fighting planes in the world. One type, a twin-motored pusher-type plane, will be armed with two 37-millimeter cannon and 50-caliber machine guns. These craft will have a top speed in excess of 300 miles an hour—just how much faster is an army secret.

Dog Fanciers Will Meet at Sheboygan

Meet at Sheboygan Milwaukee Man to Address Kennel Club Members Thursday

John Koehler, Milwaukee, president of the Wisconsin Dog Protective association, will address members of the Northeastern Wisconsin Kennel club at a regular meeting Thursday at Sheboygan.

In charge of arrangements for the gathering is Walter C. Piper, Sheboygan, a Kennel club director. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock in the Sheboygan Chamber of Commerce rooms.

Club officers and directors, representing seven cities in this section of the state, met at Oshkosh last week to formulate plans for the licensed dog show at Fond du Lac Sept. 11. The last licensed show held in this section was held at Green Bay in 1928.

Koehler's message is expected to be of interest to dog lovers, because the loss by theft is believed to be one of the greatest problems of dog owning. He will describe the workings of the successful organization which he heads.

U. S. Won't Curtail Activities of Warships on Yangtze, Japanese Told

ned an inspection trip up the Yangtze to Nanking, starting June 25. British naval authorities, it was learned, had taken a similar stand against Japanese moves to keep the river closed to foreign shipping and warcraft of neutral powers.

Yarnell's report to Johnson was understood to have pointed out that American warships were marked plainly and could be identified readily by the Japanese.

Powerful Japanese land and river forces today captured Anking, capital of Anhwei province, in a swift thrust up the Yangtze river toward Hankow. China's provisional capital, less than 200 miles farther inland.

Rising flood waters of the Yellow river, imperiling Japan's offensive through Honan province, increased the possibility that the drive by land and water up the Yangtze may become the main attack on China's seat of government.

A Japanese army spokesman acknowledged that fighting in the Chengchow sector, where Japanese are besieging the junction of the Lungai and Peiping-Hankow railroads, was being hampered by mud and rain.

Actual flood conditions do not exist yet, however, he declared. Japanese army engineers said the Yellow had risen 15 feet but must rise another 15 before the situation could be considered perilous.

Campaign threatened According to official Chinese dispatches from Hankow, the floodwaters already have crossed the vital east-west Lungai and are flowing southwest toward Anhwei.

If supply lines are cut off by the flood, they declared, the Japanese could not press their Lungai campaign.

Actual occupation of Anking, Japanese reports said, was achieved by infantry which was put ashore from transports and advanced on the provincial capital from the east and northeast after Japanese warships shelled the city from the river.

The attack on Anking was described as one of the most dramatic of the war, with thick, swirling river fog shielding the warships' movements more effectively than smoke screens.

With the ships only vaguely silhouetted at times, the Chinese shore batteries were virtually useless, witnesses reported.

A fleet of minesweepers preceded the main naval force and transports to a place about 10 miles east of Anking where the first landing party was sent ashore.

Second Landing A second landing was made a few miles from the city after which the fleet left the army to attack by land and preceded it to lay down a preliminary bombardment. By the time the land forces reached Anking's outskirts, Japanese said, the main Chinese forces were in full flight.

They acknowledged, however, they encountered stiff resistance in hand-to-hand fighting through Anking's streets before the city was captured.

So thoroughly did the fog shelter the fleet, Japanese said, that small villages on the river kept lights burning, unaware that hostile forces were approaching. In many instances, they declared, the landing parties took the Chinese defenders by complete surprise in the dark, moonless night.

Relief Patients Are Problem for Medical Society

Doctors May Discuss 'Socialized' System For Needy

San Francisco—(P)—The official leaders of American medicine today broke the ice for possible convention discussion of a "socialized" system of treating persons unable to pay their doctor bills.

They conceded flatly that the demands of indigent and low income groups for free treatment had become too great for the profession to bear alone.

They acknowledged the problem had "forced collective thinking" toward a solution and that it had given rise to proposals that the need be met by federal funds.

In retelling from the presidency of the American Medical association, Dr. J. H. J. Upham of Columbus, Ohio, said the collective thinking forced upon the profession by the unending flow of "depression" patients had awakened the doctors to social and economic questions.

Burden Too Great Assuming the presidency for 1938, Dr. Irving Abell of Louisville, Ky., told the convention that the country's 130,000 physicians were donating probably $1,000,000 worth of services daily to indigents and low income patients.

He said this was "a contribution not equalled or exceeded by any agency other than the federal government."

Both physicians joined in asserting the burden was too much for the medical profession.

On similar grounds a self-appointed committee of 430 physicians several months ago made public a declaration that the health of the people was the direct concern of the government, and that federal funds should be used to meet the demand for the treatment of the indigent and underprivileged.

The committee of 430 acted after unsuccessful efforts had been made to put proposals through the 1937 A.A.A. convention relating to "socialized" or tax-paid medicine.

Despite the opening left by the old and new heads of the medical association, some physicians who signed the report of the "430" said privately they knew of no definite move to put the famous declaration before the current convention.

Congress to End Term Wednesday, Barkley Asserts

dustries. They would consider living, production and transportation costs and other factors.

Senator Ellender (D-La.) declared this provision would make possible differentials between the north and the south. Senator Walsh (D-Mass.), on the other hand, contended geographical differentials were prevented by a clause saying "no minimum wage shall be fixed solely on a regional basis."

At the end of seven years, all minima would increase to 40 cents an hour, except where the boards decided employment might be curtailed considerably. All the factors considered in making the earlier exemptions again would be before the boards.

The practical effect of the wage provisions, one southern senator said, would be to make the original minimum set by a board for an industry virtually permanent, unless there was a marked change in operating costs and other factors affecting that business.

Over Time Provision Enforcement of the maximum hour provisions of the act—44 hours a week the first year, 42 the second and 40 thereafter—was accomplished by ordering employers to pay their workmen time and a half for all time over the maximum.

There were exemptions to the hour clause to take care of collective bargaining contracts, seasonal

SCHLAFER'S

FACTS.. FIGURES.. FITNESS.. ARE HER BUSINESS!

BUSINESS GIRL—1938 MODEL—Office manager Olive Tucker keeps disarmingly calm despite nerve-ragging phones, buzzers, interviews. "If anyone needs healthy nerves, I do," Miss Tucker smiles, adding: "That's one reason why I smoke Camels regularly. They never get my nerves upset." Later—much later—Miss Tucker skips to the rooftop gym for a quick work-out. A shower—a rub—a Camel—and she's off again! Tired? Miss Tucker's answer: "Camels give my energy a refreshing 'lift.'"

CIGARETTES MAY LOOK ALIKE—BUT WHAT AN APPEALING DIFFERENCE THERE IS IN CAMELS!

As a smoker, you'll be interested to read what Miss Tucker, successful young office manager, said to Miss MacGregor about the difference between Camels and other cigarettes (below).

"Olive, do you always serve Camels because you feel that there's a big difference between Camels and other cigarettes?"

WELKER COCHRAN, who has won many important championships at billiards, voices his choice among cigarettes: "Camels give me real smoking pleasure. Under the strain of a championship match, Camels never make me feel jittery or unsure. I'd walk a mile for a Camel!"

JOE DI MAGGIO, idol of baseball fans, speaks for millions of smokers when he comments on his favorite cigarette: "I'm a steady smoker, and Camels don't irritate my throat. That shows Camels have real mildness all right. Watch the ball players pull out Camels!"

OLD MAN BUSINESS licked for another day, Miss Tucker entertains dinner guests—thoughtfully! There are lots of Camel cigarettes around her living room. Miss Tucker observes: "Camels are the favorite with my guests and are delightful for topping off a meal. During and after dining, I smoke Camels 'for digestion's sake.' Camels set me right!"

"I'm very glad you've brought that question up, Helen. I've tried as many kinds of cigarettes as most people have, I guess, and I'm amazed at how different Camels are. Camels are extra-mild—they never bother my throat at all! And Camels taste so good and rich, yet they never leave me with that 'cigarette' after-taste. Really, in so many ways, Camels agree with me."

PEOPLE DO APPRECIATE THE COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN CAMELS

THEY ARE THE LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic

ONE SMOKER TELLS ANOTHER "CAMELS AGREE WITH ME!"

"You bet Camel is our choice in cigarettes" say these tobacco planters —and they know tobacco because they grow it!

"I know just what tobaccos the cigarette companies buy at the auctions," says Mr. John Durham, Jr., well-known planter. "One year after another, I've seen Camel buyers take the finest grades in the market—the best of my own crops and those of my friends. They took the best part of my last crop too. Better tobaccos make better smoking, as anyone that grows tobacco knows. So, like most other planters, I smoke Camels. I know the quality tobacco that's in them!"

"There's quite a difference between fine tobacco and ordinary grades," says Mr. Calvin Wiggins, who has sold tobacco to Camel for 20 years. "From my own experience, it's Camel who buys the fine, thin leaves that make the nicest cigarette smoking. Camel bought the really fine baskets of my last crop. I smoke Camels, myself. Most of my grower friends do too. I know, and they know, Camel uses costlier tobaccos."

ADVICE TO THE GRADUATES

To the 101 students who received diplomas from Lawrence college this morning, the Post-Crescent extends its sincerest congratulations. Lawrence standards are high and these students, who have survived the selective process which a good college imposes, have demonstrated considerably better than average ability. In all fairness, however, we cannot help but mention a few words of warning and offer a good measure of sympathy. The young man or woman—with the inevitable few exceptions—who starts out today is apt to be in for more than a few shocks. Life after college in most cases has little resemblance to life in college. The most prominent men and women on the campus will suddenly find themselves in situations far more obscure than those of the shyest students in college. This is where the word "commencement" comes in, for graduation does not mean the end—except the end of an era. Actually it marks the beginning of a life where every day is final examination day and the flunkers are seldom offered an opportunity to go on probation.

We are particularly sympathetic toward each Lawrence student who acquired a degree this morning, because this is not a promising year to start struggling with the world. Older brothers and sisters who emerged from college during the dark years of the early thirties will call "not a promising year" a masterpiece of understatement, which it probably is. The going, for a while, will be exceedingly tough. So it is that life after graduation, always a strain on the ego, threatens with a greater strain on the spirit.

Those graduates who can withstand both of these strains, however, will emerge better equipped to handle affairs than a great many of their elders who seem to have rather botched their jobs.

HAGUE AND THE OTHER EXTREME

The special legislative commission appointed in Massachusetts to investigate movements designed to destroy the American republic has requested congress with its greater jurisdiction to go into the matter of Red activities in America in recruiting thousands of American boys for slaughter in Spain. This commission has gone far enough at Boston to unearth, it says, the appalling dishonesty, subterfuge and criminal methods employed to deceive and delude those affected. In addition to the Red destruction of the young men who were induced to cross the ocean the Commission investigated into other methods of those under observation, activities that are planned to pave the way for the promised "proletarian revolution."

The Reds properly proceed upon the idea that before a people will destroy their government they must be made to hate it. In order to hate it its delinquencies are exaggerated until it becomes a veritable Moloch destroying its own young. Thus the Commission charges that "hunger marchers" were formed into parades by the Young Communists in order to present to thousands of onlookers in as pitiful condition as possible those who were not in fact hungry, had never been hungry, and were induced to wear frayed rags in lieu of their better clothing to create a more typical Red picture.

So long as our Reds are gnashing their teeth at the silly reversals of "I am the law" Hague of Jersey City, it might not be inappropriate to consider the antics of all together.

AN IMMIGRANT FROM ITALY

Caesar Gerard came to America from Italy as a youngster. The other day he died leaving an estate of about $16,000. He had no children but he had brothers. He left a will declaring:

"This country was good to me. I made my money in this country and I want to leave it to the country in which I made it."

And thus this little estate goes to the treasury at Washington but something goes with it much bigger than the check, the gratitude of a man who appreciated the difference between this country and the place where he had been born.

Caesar Gerard was an unusual man because few leave their property to the government but we prefer to think that he was quite in line with the teeming millions who actually and in the warmest recesses of their hearts appreciate the truth which Gerard so plainly and simply expressed.

IN WHICH WE ACT AND THEN THINK

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement that a special commission will be on its way to England this summer to make a critical analytical study of the British Trade Union Act is welcome news although greatly delayed.

Our mode of operation, generally in this country as well as under the New Deal, is to plunge head first into the creek and then find out how deep the water may be. If we had a little more national sense we would have made a complete and minute study of the labor problem before passing the Wagner Act. We would have made the same sort of study in relation to old age income before passing the present law we find on the books covering that subject. And we would have studied something further on unemployment insurance than the Wisconsin Act before applying the principle of that act to the nation.

The fault is not necessarily to be ascribed to Mr. Roosevelt. The practice in this particular is altogether too common. And the cause for it is as much the fault of the opposition as of the particular party in power which happens to pursue the hurry-up method.

Mr. Roosevelt, citing the present occupant of the White House merely as an example, devoted the major portion of his first term to political affects and scenery for the big campaign of 1936. He wanted to be able to talk about old age income even if the law he drew was full of holes. He wanted to talk about the Wagner Labor Act to attract labor support even though the present law is an admitted makeshift. And so poorly considered laws full of cracks and soft spots were hurriedly enacted to make a big show for the Grand Parade of an election year.

It had been hoped that in Mr. Roosevelt's second term everyone would get down to work and repair, fill in, and amend a multitude of weak spots to be found all through these enactments. But that is where Mr. Roosevelt fell down on us. He continued on the somewhat harum-scarum course of making more laws full of holes. The Wage-Hour measure is a good example. The White House doesn't seem to care a picaunce concerning the provisions of the law so long as it has a law it can call by that delightful name.

Some day we simply must put workers in office, practical men who are not merely looking for applause, to bring out the good that may be found in certain measures passed during the last five years. For there is good in them even if it is not yet apparent.

And one of the laws that needs attention is the Wagner Act.

PARENTS DON'T GET DIPLOMAS

This is the time of year when much advice is tendered the youth of the nation graduating from its various high schools and colleges. The occasion is also frequently used to review the progress made by our educational institutions and to attempt to chart their future.

But there is one group seldom mentioned at graduation time which plays probably the most important role of all in the scheme of education.

This is the army of America's parents. And the frequency with which they are overlooked at this time is an indication of the decreasing part parents are playing in the education of the nation's youth.

A number of parents have acquired the unconscious notion that since schools are now so efficient in operation they are completely relieved of the burden of training their children. This is hardly a healthy situation.

The education of a youngster starts with birth, and its education is entirely in the hands of the parents for at least the first five years. But education along social, religious and moral lines, in the values connected with character formation, is also almost entirely the duty of the parents until the youngster reaches maturity.

Such values as honesty, ambition, straight-forwardness, attendance to the tenets of a Christian life, to mention only a few, can best be acquired right in the home, with imitation of the parents the most influential factor. Thus parents also face the necessity of educating themselves along such lines.

The word education has unfortunately been often limited to book knowledge, and its instrument is thought of only as the school.

At graduation time the parents usually are thanked sincerely for making the necessary sacrifices to give the graduates the opportunity of attending school. And the youngsters are given the diplomas.

Parents get no engraved sheepskins. Their reward for the success of their children in after-life is a deeply personal and lasting satisfaction.

I am going to see whether any Hoosier can give me an idea on how the natives feel about New Deal plans to liquidate Senator Van Nuys, the Democrat who is so independent a thinker that even the Chicago Tribune is for him.

In addition I am going to try to find out what the folks really think about Paul McNutt, the political Adonis who would like to run for president in 1940. The last time I mentioned the name of McNutt the things I heard couldn't be repeated here. . . but maybe I talked to the wrong people.

The kidnaper-murderer of Jimmy Cash explained that a desire for the "better things of life" led him to perpetrate his double crime.

The minds of some people must be extremely scrambled. Ten thousand dollars is a lot of money in one chunk but, conservatively invested, it won't bring over $500 or $600 a year—which is not much of an income if your earnings stop there.

For Kidnapor McCall, the dividends on $10,000 are particularly unattractive.

In this connection, the recommendation of Congressman Hamilton Fish will probably raise a great deal of discussion. He proposes to make it illegal to pay ransom to kidnapers. As a general policy there is no denying the value of such a suggestion—particularly since it works elsewhere. (In Canada, for example.) The only sincere objectors to it, naturally, would be the frantic parents whose child has been snatched. It's hard boiled, but apparently it is successful.

It often happens that way: a local firm had a demonstration of one of its products last week, giving away a prize as a part of the program. The prize was won by an employee of a competing firm.

TOO MUCH RAIN!

Too much rain! The corn is rotting in the ground. The farmer plows it up and plants again. Praying the Lord will bless and keep it sound. With healing sun, and just a little rain.

Too much sorrow, disappointment and distress! The weary pilgrim plows his mental field. Praying that the bright sun of happiness For just one fleeting day will bless his yield! (Copyright, 1938)

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

ACID STOMACH

During digestion or in many instances when hunger, appetite or desire for food is stimulated by the sight, odor or even the thought of food of which one is particularly fond, the gastric juice is acid. The acid in gastric juice is hydrochloric (muriatic) acid.

If the secretion of acid is deficient, the digestion of food in the stomach is retarded and the progress of the meal thru the stomach and on into the intestine is delayed too. This subacidity or hypochlorhydria is usually present in anemia, chronic gastric "catarrh" or chronic gastritis, in persons with vitamin deficiency and in some cases of cancer of the stomach.

If the gastric juice is too acid, hyperacidity, hyperchlorhydria "acid stomach" the digesting food is likely to be hurried thru the stomach and on into the intestine before the normal digestion in the stomach is completed. Hyperacidity occurs with gastric or duodenal ulcer, gallstones, in excessive smokers and in some cases of "neurasthenia" or overirritability or abnormally sensitive reaction to everyday emotional stimuli. (Space does not permit more detailed explanation—see "Nerves and Nutrition," No. 15 in Little Lessons series).

When the hydrochloric acid is diminished or absent, proteins are badly digested, and long retention of the food in the stomach leads to fermentation (of starches or sugars) with formation of lactic acid and other acids such as butyric, as well as gases.

"Heartburn" or a painful sensation felt in the region of the esophagus, behind the breastbone, is due to regurgitation of even normal gastric juice into the esophagus or gullet; or to regurgitation of hyperacid stomach contents. Pain caused by where water acid should not be.

"Waterbrash" is the burning and irritation of the throat by normally acid or hyperacid fluid regurgitated from the stomach. Eructation of gas, belching, may occur in any case of hypochlorid or hyperacid stomach. In some of the most pronounced instances of belching, however, there is nothing the matter with the stomach, just an unconscious, perhaps "nervous" habit of swallowing air and expelling it with sound effects. This is the explanation for many "gas attacks" which are brought on by an emotional upset.

It is a common fallacy that such a "gas attack" or the presence of more than the normal amount of air or gas in the alimentary tract or what seems an excessive amount, is dangerous. The danger is that it may "press on the heart" and interfere with, if not stop, the heart. No such thing ever happens. The worst excessive air or gas in the stomach can do is to cause some slight discomfort from the "bloated" feeling that accompanies it. If the patient is not unduly alarmed or worried about the "pressing on the heart" the temporary discomfort is presently relieved in the natural way, that is, by the onward progress of the gas or air into the intestine. In any case there is no imperative need of something to "bring up" the gas or absorb it or get rid of it.

FLAG DAY

Flag day commemorates the date June 14th, 1777, when congress adopted our first national emblem. The flag of the United States was rich in meaning at its birth, for it sprang into existence in the cause of right and liberty, it had its origin in a conflict whereby we achieved our independence.

May this symbol of our nation always represent ideals by which to live a sense of the opportunities that others have created for us to enjoy, a desire to take part in any high purposes that will make our country a stronger and better land. Let us appreciate what it means—that this is a flag of a free country of constitutional government, it is a symbol of democracy in the government of the United States of America.

"Your Flag and My Flag
And oh! how much it holds—
Your land and my land
Secure within its folds."
May the sight of our flag remind us constantly that our duty is to keep our land secure within its folds, and the importance of teaching the youth of this country to be good, true citizens.

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER
Washington—There is just a possibility that when the Supreme Court reopens next fall Justice Black may be leading his colleagues into a reversal of one of its most important decisions of the session just ended.

It has to do with radio tubes, talking pictures, "patent pools" and more. No only. Now don't get frightened. Court cases are fun if you escape being led down a dark alley by a deceptive whereas or a sly certiorari.

On one of the last decision days before the court recessed for the summer it decided a case that loomed big on the financial pages but didn't show up often on front pages.

Here's the lay of the land: In the years from 1912 to 1916, Western Electric, a subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, bought several basic radio tube patents. The tubes weren't a striking success at first but the idea was right and experiments ultimately brought them around. Radio developed, along with loud speaker systems and talking pictures, and Western Electric truly had something.

Patent laws have been enacted to protect such developments. If a company wants to keep its patents all to itself, it can. If it wants to permit their use under strict lease, it can, but if it sells them outright across the counter—well, there is where the Supreme Court comes in.

Sold—But Not Entirely
Western Electric intended to make money from sales of tubes. (There's one or more in millions of homes.) But it wanted to hold for itself and its allied companies the right to use them in talking picture machines and certain other commercial fields.

So each dealer selling Western Electric tubes had to agree to sell them only to amateurs or for use in home receiving sets.

But a company known as General Talking Pictures, Corporation decided this was stretching a patent monopoly too far. It went to a dealer licensed to sell Western Electric tubes for amateur and home use and bought many of them. Disregarding the restrictions for use noted on each tube, it installed them in its talking picture projectors and sold them on the general market.

That was exactly what Western Electric didn't want. A lawsuit followed. Western Electric contended that General Talking Pictures was bound by the terms of the sale and could not use the tubes in commercial sets, but only for amateur and home purposes. Federal courts agreed with Western Electric right up to the Supreme Court, which also agreed—except Justice Black.

Justice Black wrote a dissenting opinion which stated that the Supreme Court had enormously broadened the patent monopoly by permitting patent owners to restrict the uses to which its patents could be put even after they had been sold to others.

There'll Be A Rehearing

Moreover, Black said, Western Electric, General Electric and Radio Corporation of America are operating a "patent pool" by which each allows the others to use all patents under an agreement by which each leaves a certain field of operations to the others.

He insisted that Congress, in enacting the patent laws, never intended to put machinery in the hands of such a "pool" to sell their patented products broadcast and yet tell the purchaser how he could use them and how not.

General Talking Pictures, pressing its arguments along the same line, appealed for a rehearing. The Supreme Court mightily seldom grants one. But on the last day of its session it nevertheless granted a rehearing. That will come next fall.

Lawrence Alumni Elect John Strange President, Attend Weekend Lectures

John Strange of Neenah, secretary of the Institute of Paper Chemistry, was elected president of the Lawrence Alumni association at the annual business meeting held Saturday morning. He succeeds Russell Flom of Menasha.

Other new officers are Palmer McConnell, Appleton, first vice president; Miss Adela Klumb, Appleton, secretary; Arthur Dimick, Appleton, treasurer.

The alumni gathered on the south campus, several hundred strong, for their annual picnic in the early part of Saturday afternoon and then attended two alumni college lectures, one later that afternoon at Science hall and the second that evening at Peabody hall.

Professor Leonard Keeler, director of the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory and recipient of an honorary degree from Lawrence college this morning, was the speaker at the alumni college Saturday evening.

Explains 'Lie Detector'

By use of slides, he explained the operation of the polygraph or "lie detector" which he has helped develop. He also lectured on ballistics and fingerprints and other aspects of the crime detection work carried on in the famous laboratory of which he is head.

The lie detector is not only used in the questioning of suspects, Professor Keeler said, but also in personnel work.

"We have had at least 60 banks seek our help in examining applicants for positions and many department stores hire us to use the polygraph on their applicants," he said.

The machine, which records blood pressure, pulse, and respiration, accurately shows reactions in humans to the various questions asked. Although a natural nervousness will show itself on the graph—eventually the person may be innocent—guilt generally brings out more violent reactions, Professor Keeler said.

Question Applicants

"In the questioning of applicants for positions, we usually ask them if they have ever stolen money or merchandise in any place they worked previously." Even though their guilt will record itself on the machine, in some cases, if they confess their thefts to us and seem ready to go straight, we'll recommend them for the positions. A year later, if they have been honest, they'll be asked to take the test again and the graph will be perfectly normal."

Through this type of work, Professor Keeler said, the crime detection bureau has found—at least in the Chicago area—that 65 per cent of the persons who work in money handling institutions take money some time or other, however little, and that 85 per cent of the persons working in department stores are guilty of stealing merchandise, either occasionally or habitually.

"Why, there's one store in Chicago that figures an annual loss of four per cent on 'internal shrinkage' stealing by employees," he said.

In one case, the laboratory found through the lie detector that 15 out of 18 employees in a small store were regularly stealing merchandise.

WIN CLASS DAY HONORS AT LAWRENCE COLLEGE

institute graduates. Twelve young men received their master of science degrees from the institute and five, one of them William John Foote, Jr., of Appleton, their doctor of philosophy degrees.

Winners of the traditional academic prizes were announced at commencement.

Wins Lewis Prize

Miss Monroe, one of the three to be graduated summa cum laude, received the Lewis prize, given to the senior with the most excellent record. She was also one of the two students who shared the Charles Champion prizes in commerce and industry. The other was Robert O'Neil of Appleton.

Charles Larsen of Green Bay received second prize in the Champion award.

Carlyle Rennett of Appleton won the University of Wisconsin scholarship, with Janet Riesberry as alternate. Robert Mott of Neenah walked off with the Thomas E. Reid scholarship in journalism and the Hicks story prize. Margaret Rapp, a special student, won the Reid scholarship in art and Barbara Bartley in library studies.

Michael Galko of Milwaukee, a junior, received the Warren Hurst Stevens scholarship. This scholarship is to be applied towards the college fees for the senior year and is awarded annually to the junior man distinguished for scholarship and activities. Marian Gerlach of Weyauwega, a junior in the conservatory, was awarded the Sigma Alpha Iota scholarship for her musical ability and scholarship.

Other Winners

The Business Man's prizes for excellence in Latin were won by Ottilie Burger and Bonnie Bonthron, who were first and second respectively. Miss Bonthron also won the Latin League prize offered annually by the juniors and seniors of the Latin League of Wisconsin colleges.

Herman Erb prizes in German went to Carla Naber of Mayville, a junior, and Evelyn Kregel, Appleton, a sophomore. Marian Davis, Oshkosh, a sophomore, and William Depont, Cloquet, Minn., a junior, won first and second in the Ralph White mathematics awards.

Selden Spencer, a sophomore from Williams Bay, was judged the winner of the Hicks poetry prize and Joseph Morton, sophomore from Batavia, Ill., of the Alexander Reid essay prize. Jane Wood won the Tichenor prize in English literature and Barbara Bartley was second.

Class Day prizes were awarded Saturday. Robert Arthur won the Spector cup and Clifford Burton of Appleton the Charles Champion cup for proficiency in scholarship and athletics. Athletic blankets went to Burton, Carleton Grode of Menasha, and Evan Vande Walle of Nichols.

Elected to Fraternity

Seniors elected by Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary fraternity this year, included Alan Adrian, Barbara Bartley, Everett Bauman, Bonnie Bonthron, Ottilie Burger, Marian Humlek, Robert Mott, Fern Munroe, Robert O'Neil, Perry Peterson, Janet Riesberry, Carlyle Rennett, and Ellen Sweet.

Departmental honors went to the following: Alan Adrian, chemistry; Barbara Bartley, English; Everett Bauman, history; Bonnie Bonthron, French; Ottilie Burger, Latin; Marian Humlek, government; Marjorie Mason, sociology; Evelyn Merts, fine arts; Robert Mott, English; Fern Munroe, economics; Helen Peters, French; Carlyle Rennett, English; Janet Riesberry, history; Jane Wood, English.

Few Errors

In the questioning of 19,000 suspects and criminals, the lie detector has erred in only 12 cases, Keeler said. "But these mistakes were in favor of the subjects. In all 12 cases, the machine showed the persons were innocent and they were later proven to be guilty. Wherever the machine has shown the person to be either guilty or connected with the case in some way, it has been right."

Persons of subnormal intelligence, however, cannot be accurately examined by the machine, Keeler explained, because their reactions are not normal. In cases of this kind, where morons are involved, the machine is of little help.

In the afternoon college at Science hall, Professor Kenneth Craig of the chemistry department presented a "Magic of Chemistry" demonstration in which he puzzled the alumni with sleight-of-hand tricks performed with test tubes and beakers instead of silk hats and playing cards. Following Craig's demonstration, the alumni heard a lecture on color photography by Professor Stephen Darling.

As he conferred the Doctor of Music degree on Mr. Bauer, President Barrows said:

"Because you have a truly great talent and have so generously shared it with others, because you have recognized in music real educational values for everyone, and because in your several visits to this campus we have come to know and respect you, we delight to honor you, and by the authority vested in me, I confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Music, honoris causa, and admit you to all its rights and privileges."

Born in New York State

Born in the township of White Creek in New York in 1890, the Rev. Mr. Hanna was graduated from Cambridge High school in New York in 1907 and from Wesleyan university in 1912. At college he was president of his fraternity and won three varsity track letters. In the summer of 1912, he studied at University of Marburg in Germany. He was graduated from Union Theological seminary in New York in 1922 and became student pastor at Massachusetts State college at Amherst, Mass. During that time he received his M. A. degree in sociology from Amherst college. Later he studied for his Ph. D. at Columbia. He has been pastor of the First Congregational church since the summer of 1935. The Rev. Mr. Hanna is co-author of a work entitled "Undergraduate Instruction in Religious Education in the United States."

Known best for his development of the polygraph or "lie-detector," Professor Leonard Keeler is director of the scientific crime detection laboratory at Northwestern University law school. Born in Berkeley, Calif., in 1903, he received his A. B. at Stanford university in 1929. He had studied under Police Chief August Vollmer at Los Angeles during the years 1923 and 1924. In 1930, after college graduation, he became research assistant in the physiology department at Northwestern university. He was awarded the Chicago Junior Association of Commerce medal "for the most outstanding civic contribution to Chicago" in 1932, his polygraph having helped convict many of the city's worst criminals. He is a contributor to the "American Journal of Police Science."

Painter of Midwest Life

A painter of the homely rural life of America's midwest, famous for his "American Gothic," "Dinner for Threshers," and others, Grant Wood was born in Anamosa, Ia., in 1892. He started working as a craftsman in metal and hand-made jewelry in 1912 and from 1919 to 1924 was an art teacher in the public schools of Cedar Rapids, Ia. He won the Harris bronze medal and prize for his painting, "American Gothic," at the American exhibit in the Art Institute of Chicago in 1930. Although he spends much of his time in the east, he is associate professor of graphic and plastic arts at Iowa State university at Ames.

Born in London in 1873, Harold Bauer began studying violin as a child. He made his debut in London and toured for nine years. Finally, on recommendation of the great Paderewski, he went to Paris to study piano and started his concert career in 1893. He toured the principal cities of Europe and appeared in the United States with the Boston Symphony orchestra in

Dr. Laing Hits at Over-Emphasis on Vocational Study

Tells Graduates Education Needs Return to 'Old Type' Courses

American education is steering too far towards the "so-called practical subjects" of vocational training and needs to get back to the "old type curriculum" in which language, literature, and history formed the bulwark, Dr. Gordon J. Laing, dean emeritus of the division of humanities at University of Chicago, told Lawrence college graduates at commencement this morning.

Speaking on "Humanities and Their Place in Education," Dr. Laing declared that the movement away from such subjects as art, history, literature, and languages is especially evident in high schools, but is also manifest in many college curricula.

"In the old high schools, such subjects used to have a dominating position, but no so any more," he said. "Many educators have forgotten the meaning of the words, 'high school.'"

The humanities, Dr. Laing asserted, "form the background of the curriculums of the best high schools in the country, but many others have drawn off in favor of the so-called practical subjects."

Latin Practical

The learned Latin scholar and archaeologist told his listeners that as far as being practical, the study of Latin measures up "to the highest sense of the word."

He pointed to the importance of Latin as the origin of many of our English words and said that "an hour spent in studying any language is an hour spent in studying English."

Taking up a fragment of the front page of a Chicago newspaper, he read headlines and indicated words with Latin sources to show the significance of the language.

"The college has the same tendency towards practical subjects today," he said. "There is a definite movement towards social subjects. Many are choosing economics, political science, and other courses for majors. Now I don't wish to disparage the importance of this part of the college curriculum, but I do think professors will agree that crowded classes are not always the best thing. Many students are simply following the fashion of the day."

Puts Crowd at Ease

The gray-haired, good-natured man put the crowd in good spirits at the outset of his talk by assuring them that he knew "no subject in the wide world is too dull for commencement speakers" and that he had had plenty of experience in listening to speakers. "Now that I'm re-emerging, I have to give them," he said.

He kept the crowd in good spirits, for there were plenty of laughs in his recounting of various incidents illustrating points and in his amusing and skillful style of speaking.

Dr. Laing reminded the graduates that graduation from college was not a guarantee that they are educated, that "what a student gets in college is only the basis for a subsequent structure."

He pleaded for the reading of good literature as a way for the graduate to continue learning and played the "cheap weekly and monthly periodicals" as obstacles to good reading, declaring they represent "exploitation of the ephemeral."

Cheap periodicals have "done immeasurable damage to the reading of good books," he said, and warned the graduates against the popular feeling that anyone who shows an interest in the classics is a high-brow.

Cherish Ideals, Graduates Told At Baccalaureate

Rev. John B. Hanna Warns Lawrentians Against World's Temptations

The charge to cherish their ideals and have the strength and courage to stand for what they know is right in a world which is at variance with those views was given to the 1938 graduates of Lawrence college by the Rev. John B. Hanna, pastor of First Congregational church, in the baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning at Lawrence Memorial chapel.

Termining the world of today a "modern Babylon," in which the youth of today is called upon to "sing the Lord's songs," the speaker said that there are three great pressures or temptations to be met in the world, namely, doubt of the validity of one's own ideals and convictions, especially when they run counter to convention; the temptation to be morally neutral; and the temptation to feel that the problems which face one are too big for man's mind to solve.

In speaking of religion, Mr. Hanna quoted from the book, "Middletown in Transition," which observes that the churches of a typical midwestern town tend to avoid controversial subjects and preach what the community already believes. He pointed to liquor, youth and race problems as questions on which people have been morally neutral, and described the "ingrowing toenail" type of rugged individualism which is interested only in what directly concerns oneself.

Can Be Solved

The Rev. Mr. Hanna criticized the attitude that problems of today are too big for man to solve, saying "Difficult as they may be, I believe that you and I can solve them if we put our shoulders to the wheel and have faith in our fellowmen and in God."

In order to overcome these temptations and succeed in "singing the Lord's songs in a strange land," the speaker told his listeners to remember that man is always in a strange land.

"You and I are, in the deeper sense, a colony of Heaven," he said. Man is always at tension with the universe in which he lives, Mr. Hanna continued, quoting the scriptural message, "Be ye not conformed but transformed."

"Expect Great Things"

Expect great things of yourselves and of others, he exhorted the graduates, pointing to the disciples of Jesus who had "expectation, creation and something ever more about to be." Young people of today ought, like Napoleon, to have a perfect strategy for victory, none for defeat, the Rev. Mr. Hanna added.

In conclusion the speaker said that the one who obeys the highest ideals in his heart has the universe with him, for the universe is, in the long run, against the wrongdoer.

The baccalaureate service which was characterized by solemnity opened with the academic procession of the faculty of the college, conservatory and Institute of Paper Chemistry and the 1938 graduates. Francis Proctor was organist. The chapel was nearly filled for the service. The Lawrence A Cappella choir under the direction of Dean Carl J. Waterman sang several anthems and the choral responses and the audience joined in singing two hymns.

The scripture reading was given by President Thomas N. Barrows, the prayer by Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor of First Methodist church, and the benediction by the Rev. Mr. Hanna. During the offertory Mr. Proctor played "Andante Cantabile, from the First Organ Sonata" by Philip James.

Youth Stops Here On Distance Skate To Del Rio, Texas

Ken Chrysler, 21, Racine, professional roller skater, arrived here last night in a long distance skate to Del Rio, Texas, 16 hours ahead of schedule. Chrysler is to receive a $2,000 prize if he reaches his destination in 57 days, and to do this he must skate an average of 36 miles per day.

The blond, thin youth was born in Black Creek and formerly lived in Appleton as Lester Smith, Jr. He changed his name after becoming a professional skater.

He was to have started his trip from Fort Frances, Canada, but because of unfavorable road conditions he skated from Madison to Duluth and back to get in the necessary mileage. He expects to wear out 12 pairs of skates and about 300 wheels on the journey, and will give exhibitions and appear on radio programs en route.

Chrysler will leave Appleton tomorrow morning on Highway 41 for Milwaukee. He will take Highway 55 after reaching Fond du Lac. The youth was the first to skate over the Golden Gate bridge, San Francisco, doing it in six minutes.

His counsel said that because he still is suffering from sciatica as the result of a fall, he will be taken by ambulance from Madison to Waupun.

Two other officials of the Buckman firm, Louis C. George, vice president, and E. C. Holt, secretary-treasurer, have been directed to report to the sheriff at 1 o'clock p. m. tomorrow to be taken to Waupun.

Judge Schinz, pointing out that the defendant's were sentenced on 23 counts of selling unregistered securities in Milwaukee county, recalled the prosecution had told him or other sales throughout the state and added "other sales made by the defendant in violation of the law could not be considered by the court."

Members of the public service commission last week issued a statement at Madison that sentences imposed by Judge Schinz on the Buckman officials were "grossly inadequate."

Judge Schinz said Buckman would receive adequate medical and dental treatment in prison.

Troublesome Questions

Whether the Henleinists will be content with mere concessions, however, remained a vital question. Another question causing great anxiety among diplomatic observers was how the non-Sudeten would react to any attempt by the government to make sweeping concessions.

As far as can be judged by an outsider the attitude of the Czech citizenry seems to be that the republic has demonstrated its willingness to fight for its existence and can count on the great democracies—France and Britain—to help it against an invader.

France's former Premier, Pierre Flandin said in a speech at Vienna, France, last night that the Daladier government was prepared to order mobilization to aid Czechoslovakia if she were invaded by Germany. He warned that the danger of war was increasing in Europe and urged members of the democratic alliance party to oppose war unless France herself were attacked.

Tavernkeeper Is New Skat League Champion

Madison — (U)—Michael Schultis, Milwaukee tavernkeeper, who piled up a record number of game points, is the new champion of the North American Skat league.

Schultis played his cards for a point total of 1,207 in 28 games, the highest ever credited to an individual in the 41 years of skat tournament.

He is a veteran player and was national president of the league in 1928.

Second place went to Alvin J. Reiser, New Holstein, who accumulated 1,014 points.

After the auditing committee completes its check up of score sheets, the winners will divide $3,000 of awards.

The league chose Sheboygan as the place of its 1939 tournament and elected the following officers, all of whom, by custom are residents of the next convention city: Alfred G. Quasius, president; Ray V. Meyer and William O. Koehler, vice presidents; Eugene Loebel, secretary; William Kaestner, secretary.

Quasius succeeds Emil Hartman, Madison, as president.

Set Date for Receiving Road Construction Bids

Oshkosh — The final date for the receiving of bids for the construction work on United States highway 110, three miles south of Fremont, has been set for June 21, according to E. M. Bird, Winnebago county highway commissioner.

The construction work involves relocation of Highway 110 south of Fremont, eliminating four sharp curves in the route. The relocation will consist of a stretch of highway, a little over a mile and a half long, of concrete surfacing, starting at Hoffberger's resort and then north to the Winnebago county line.

The bids must be accompanied by a guaranteed bond of $4,000 and sent to the state highway commission at Madison where they will be opened and allowed June 21.

Because the carload of oil scheduled to arrive in Appleton today did not come, the oiling program was delayed, according to the city engineer. However, the work will be started as soon as the oil arrives.

Vote Funds to Continue Low-Cost Housing Work

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington — The senate appropriations committee today voted, on motion of Senator F. Ryan Duffy, Fond du Lac, to add $200,000 to the deficiency appropriation bill to permit the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, to continue investigations in production of low-cost housing. The senate is expected to approve the amendments. But it then must go back to the house of representatives for approval or rejection.

Consider Comfort First

When Clothing the Baby

BY ANGELO PATRI

In clothing the baby the first thing to bear in mind is comfort. He must be warm without being overheated. He must be cool without being chilled. A good thermometer is a necessary piece of equipment. It will help you keep the baby's room at an even temperature. You will not have to keep watching to see that he is comfortable. You will know by looking at the thermometer. It has been found that a cool temperature, about sixty-eight, is right for most children. An over-heated room is not as good as a cool one.

Before taking the baby out look at the outdoor thermometer. Then dress the child accordingly. It is better to go by the thermometer than by your guess. Avoid windy, dusty days. Avoid wet, rainy days. When the weather is fine a daily airing for the baby, who is well clothed, is helpful. It gives him a better appetite, lovelier color and sounder sleep.

Dress the child with the idea of allowing gentle, easy circulation of air about his body. Materials that shut out the air are not good. A baby's skin must breathe. Heavy clothing (weight) is not necessarily warm. Often a light wool coat is much warmer than a heavy coat of other material. Don't pile on clothing. Select the right kind, the proper cut and fit, and you won't have to.

The fit of clothes is important. Wrinkles and pleats hurt the baby's tender skin. Seams that draw and pull are irritating and make the baby restless and fretful. Garments that are too tight are bad because they stop the perfect circulation of the blood and restrain the free movements of the body. The baby must feel free to kick and tumble about. He needs these developing exercises, needs them to promote growth, self-control and general intelligence.

Clothes ought to be as pretty as possible and still be simple and easy to wash. Their color should be attractive. Yes, the baby should like his clothes. The little one like to be well dressed. He likes the feeling of comfort and well-being. He likes the praise and the admiration that pretty things bring to him. All this helps to give the child confidence and poise. And anything that does that contributes to sound mental health.

Remember a baby is well-dressed when he is dressed to fit the occasion. Play suits can be pretty and at the same time sturdy and durable.

Overalls are fine for play. They allow the greatest freedom of movement and protection. They are washable and they can be had in attractive patterns. Dress-up clothes should be worn only on dress occasions.

Do not forget the care of the child's feet. Stockings should fit without wrinkles or bumps. Blisters are bad, and stockings that do not fit raise a blister in no time. Be sure the feet and the stockings are clean. Watch the toe-nails to see that they are growing straight and evenly. Shoes can make a child's life miserable. See that they fit just right. Don't buy them big enough for next year. They must fit today.

Clothe the child for protection and warmth. The right clothing

Fails to Play 2nd Hand Low

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson, I am sending you a hand that illustrates what a man (meaning me) will do when playing against his wife. It also illustrates that Providence takes care of fools and drunkards, and being partly both I proceeded to give my exhibition as the South player.

1 heart 2 spades 3 hearts 4 clubs
Double 4 spades Pass Pass

Pass Pass Pass Double

"The opening lead was the spade ace, which probably was wrong. I trumped and led a heart to the ace, felling the king and queen. I took home the good spade, discarding a club from my hand, and then led a club from dummy. At this juncture my poor lady, probably in a panic, jumped up with the club ace!

"There were plenty of recriminations and North, who plays the game only about twice in a year, was the only one who could be said to have acted normally.

Sincerely yours,
"R. T. P., Chicago."

Before I get around to the play I had better say a word or two about the bidding. It is very obvious that South, my correspondent, is not a timid bidder. His opening heart bid was shaded about a trick and a half but, nothing daunted, he proceeded to rebid every time it was his turn. Perhaps he knew in some occult fashion that North was under-bidding commensurately. North, having given one heart raise over the two spades, seems to have been stricken dumb thereafter by his own boldness. With a far better hand than South's in respect to honor tricks, he kept on passing as though he had a near bust.

Now for the play. I agree that West's opening lead was pretty bad. His partner having bid clubs at the four level, the club king certainly could be considered a safe lead. After the spade ace opening the six heart contract was as cold as ice, this despite the fact that his correspondent evidently felt that his wife (East) made a fatal play in rushing up with the club ace and dropping the blank king.

My innate chivalry always leads me to protect the ladies, when possible and it is a pleasure to point out that South could have played in such a fashion as to make his wife's play unimportant. Ruffing the opening lead, South should lead a high heart to the ace, cash the spade king, and then play three rounds of diamonds, ruffing the third round. He should return to dummy with a trump and ruff the last diamond. With spades and diamonds stripped, he should lead a heart back to dummy and then play a club. Now, whatever East did, the contract would be roneided. The ace play would drop West's blank king, whereas a duck would throw West on lead with the king and force a spade return. On this dummy could discard its last club while declarer ruffed.

I wonder whether my correspondent's "poor lady" will see this article?

The best oven temperature for baking ham is between 250 and 275 degrees Fahrenheit. This gives a most delicious ham which slices well. If a glazed appearance is desired, use a left-over sweetened fruit juice for basting the ham. This also adds to the flavor.

Wonders of Beaver Life

I—ANIMAL WOODCUTTERS

A man can cut down a tree with an ax or a saw, but the beaver uses four sharp teeth called "incisors." Ever since people have known about beavers, those animals have been cutting trees with their teeth, and there is no doubt that the same sort of thing went on long before people began to study them.

Then, as a beaver does not like to work too long on any one task, he shuffled off.

That beaver then went about the woods and ate bark from saplings. He also did some work in clearing a roadway from the birch down to a nearby pond.

Beavers may take turns in cutting a tree, but the custom is for them to work one or two at a time on each tree. Now and then a single beaver does all the cutting of a tree, and may fell one with an eight-inch trunk after a night of work.

The beaver usually cuts from all sides until only a small section is left to hold up the tree. Then the little animal gets out of the way. Sometimes he waits until the wind makes the tree topple, but in other cases he does not scamper off until he hears the creaking of the trunk as the tree starts to fall.

Does a beaver always know which way a tree will tumble? Probably not. Trees with trunks which lean over a river or pond will fall into the water, but in the woods they often fall against other trees, and are held fast above the ground unless the beavers do something about it. Tomorrow I shall tell what beavers do to some of the trees which do not fall the right way.

Tomorrow: Questions About Beavers.

(Copyright, 1938)

Canada has far more beavers than the United States. The number of beavers in Canada has been estimated at more than one and a half million—several times as many as in the United States.

Among the men who have made a long and careful study of beavers is A. Radclyffe Dugmore. Here is an account he gives of a beaver at work as a woodcutter in a Canadian forest:

"Sitting on his hind legs, he commenced the hard work of biting through the wood of a birch tree, after first eating the coating of the bark. Crunch, crunch, crunch, crunch! Then a pause as he dropped the clean cut chips, and again the crunching sound resounded through the darkened woods.

Time to Prepare Girl for Life Is at Cradle Stage

BY DOROTHY DIX

A mother asks: "How should I talk to a 16-year-old daughter? What counsel shall I give her? How can I teach a pleasure-loving, high-spirited girl who is utterly ignorant of life, yet who thinks she knows all the answers, to avoid the temptations and dangers that lie all about her?"

Well, I am sadly afraid that if a mother has waited until her daughter is 16 years old before she has had any heart-to-heart talks with her, that what she says won't register much with the girl. She is 16 years too late with her instructive conversation. The time to begin is in the cradle.

It is the modesty, it is a love of decency, it is the refinement that is repulsed by grossness; it is the self-control, it is the rock-bottom principles that nothing can shake which a girl learns at her mother's knee that enables her to walk safely through the pitfalls of the world. In our moments of temptation we don't split hairs over an ethical problem. We instinctively act according to

The thing that too many mothers of emancipated youth every girl has or cannot follow her into the places of business in which she works, or protect her against the men she meets. She must be taught how to defend herself, for she will stand or fall according to the wisdom and strength that is in her.

So, then, I think that if I had a 16-year-old daughter to deal with, I would begin by lighting a few red lanterns of warning at the hairpin turns of life where the young are likely to skid and go over the brink. I shouldn't indulge in any maudlin sentimentalism about not brushing the dew from the rosebud and keeping a young girl from knowing any of the sordid facts of life so that she would retain her innocent, childlike belief in fairy stories.

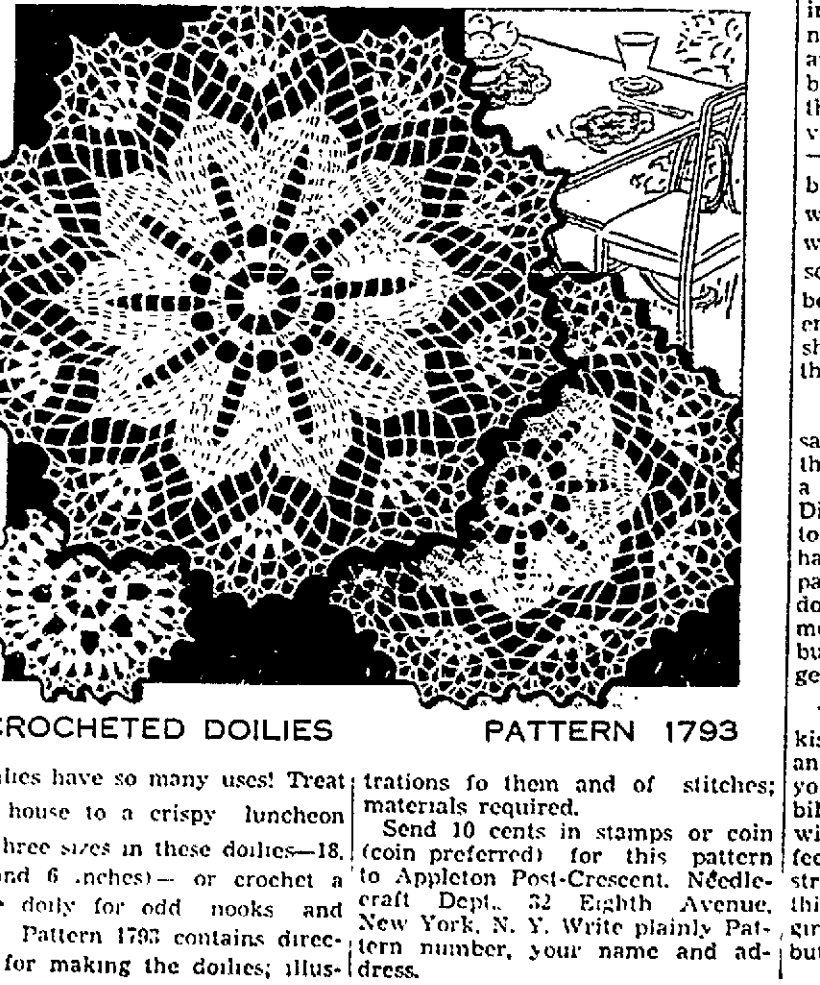

On the contrary, I would tell her all that is to be told. I'd make her read the scandals in the daily papers so she would know what happened to girls who let hand-some young men in fine cars pick them up for joyrides, or who let their married busses tell them how their wives misunderstood them; or who let some boy persuade them into setting up a love nest with him. I would know that ignorance isn't innocence, and that the surest way to make a girl watch her step is for her to know where the danger spots lie.

Then I think I would say to my 16-year-old girl. Take it easy, daughter. Don't be in too much of a hurry to swallow life down at one gulp. You probably have forty or fifty years more to live. Save something of interest and enjoyment to spread over them.

Enjoy yourself, but don't overdo it. Have plenty of fun, but don't wreck your health by dancing all night when you have to work all day and going without lunch to buy finery for your dates. Play around with the boys, but don't imagine yourself in love with every good-looking youth with a permanent wave in his hair. Just remember that your tastes and your emotions haven't had time to jell yet, and that the things and the people you are crazy about one day you wouldn't have on a bet the next.

Then I would say to my sweet 16: Hold yourself dear. Don't make yourself cheap. Realize that every man is going to take you at your own valuation and treat you accordingly. If you have dignity and self-respect, independence and reverence for your own body, men will not tell dirty stories, or make improper proposals to you. They will put on their best manners as well as their best clothes when they come to take you out, and you will

Gives Ten Ideas for Reducing

BY ELSIE PIERCE

If you are not too overweight to start with, you no longer need to diet for the screen. Merely maintain the correct proportions. In other words, keep your weight, but shift it so that your hips are three inches slimmer than your shoulders.

Incidentally, Miss Mary Carlisle, with a 34 bust, 24 waist and 33 hips has been called the perfect film figure for a girl of average height. She says she knows from the experience of friends that many girls lose their chances in films because they are as wide in the hips as they are in the bust or shoulders.

"Still, too many girls have lost their health and their lives by too strenuous reducing," Miss Carlisle adds. That is why she prescribes exercises and massage for the three inches less around the hips than around shoulders or bust. She contends that "photographic tests we have made prove that girls can be a healthy weight and still look sylphlike providing they maintain the mentioned proportions. And, the critical eye of the camera sees all and tells all.

For Sedentary Souls

Her news is not kind to sedentary souls, I'm sure. Their hips have a way of spreading merely from sitting. Her advice to them is to get up as often as possible, move about, run your own errands instead of asking others to do them for you, pick up your own papers instead of waiting for the office boy to do the sooping. And when you are not obliged to it at your desk or work, make it a point to exercise the hips "like anything."

If you are accustomed to riding a mile or two each morning to business, walk. If it is a longer ride, park your automobile and walk part of the distance at least once in a while. And when you do walk, don't saunter, make it a brisk pace, swing your arms, breathe deeply.

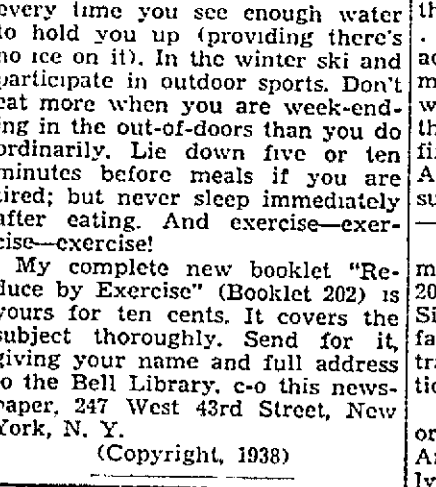

Don't eat between meals. Swallow every time you see enough water to hold you up (providing there's no ice on it). In the winter, sk and participate in outdoor sports. Don't eat more when you are week-end or in the out-of-doors than you do ordinarily. Lie down five or ten minutes before meals if you are tired; but never sleep immediately after eating. And exercise—exercise—exercise!

My complete new booklet "Reducing by Exercise" (Booklet 202) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address, to the Bell Library, c/o this newspaper, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y.

WEDDING DETAILS

Dear Mrs. Post: How many ushers do you think we ought to have at our wedding? I am not sure, but many people there will be to eat but we have sent out three hundred invitations in case that will give you a figure to estimate with.

Answer: Six would be best—although four might be enough if the aisles are not over long.

Dear Mrs. Post: My best friends are married so I am confused about who to choose for my bridesmaids. I have been my understanding that brides attendants, with the exception of the matron or honor, should not be married women. I have never heard of bride's matrons, only of bridesmaids.

Answer: Although they are called bridesmaids, even when they are really brides' matrons, it is not at all unusual for a bride to have one or many married attendants. In other words, the bride and groom both always choose their most intimate friends, and whether they are single or married does not interfere with this choice. It is even not impossible to have a maid of honor and have married women for bridesmaids, or a single best man and one or two married ushers. And while on this subject, it is perhaps important to add that the husbands or wives of these attendants are not included in the procession nor, if there is one, are they necessarily seated at the bridal table, but they must be given.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there any impropriety in being married on a national holiday? And is there any real reason why it would not be all right for us to be married in the church in the late morning, inviting all our friends and relatives,

And, finally, my dear, I would say to my 16-year-old: Go slow on the petting. Don't make your lips a free lunch counter for every Tom, Dick and Harry who takes you out to the movies. Maybe there is no harm in a casual good-night kiss, particularly if it has been used down with custom until it has no more thrill in it than a handshake, but all the same kissing is a dangerous pastime for girls.

Old Gardener Says:

Almost every kind of plant which grows in the flower garden is subject to attack by plant lice, or aphids as they are called. There are many kinds of aphids. Indeed, it sometimes seems that every plant has a particular variety which feeds upon it, and then there are other kinds which circulate indiscriminately and suck the juices of almost any plant on which they find themselves. Plant lice are very active and multiply very rapidly during the hot days of summer. Therefore, the garden maker, who keeps ahead of them must begin spraying early and be constantly vigilant. One of the rotenone sprays or dusts, used according to the directions of the manufacturer, will give control. Also effective is nicotine sulfate at the rate of two teaspoonsful to one gallon of water in which enough soap has been dissolved to make a good suds. Frequent sprayings will be necessary to give complete control.

tives, and then having a breakfast afterwards for just the immediate families and attendants, and a big dance in the evening to which everyone will be invited back again? it very awkward for everyone concerned to divide the celebration as you are proposing to do. The over long delay between the ceremony and the dance in the evening means not only endlessly dragged out hours of waiting for everyone, but that your family will undoubtedly have a feeling of obligation to provide entertainment and the evening meal for the bridal party, the bridegroom's family and all visiting relatives. All this, however, is something for you yourself to decide. Personally, I think it would be very much nicer if you had the wedding in the late afternoon with a reception following at which there could very well be dancing. Or, if evening weddings are customary where you live you might be married in the evening. But in either case you would be making it one unbroken celebration instead of a divided one.

Menasha Students Earn $655 Under NYA Plan

Menasha—Menasha High school students earned $655.70 during the school year under the National Youth administration, according to O. F. Johnson, timekeeper for the projects. About 15 students were helped each month.

The aid is given to needy students who do useful work about the school, thereby helping the community as well as themselves, according to Mr. Johnson. The money received by the students is turned over to be used for necessities.

The highest total payroll was for the month of March, amounting to $105.20. The maximum aid to an individual student was $6 per month. The NYA program in Menasha High school was under the supervision of Principal A. J. Armstrong and Mr. Johanson.

Merrill and Flom Win Water Boiling Contest

Menasha—The water boiling contest in the camporee events staged by scouts of Troop 3, sponsored by St. Thomas Episcopal church, was won by the team of Jim Merrill and Dick Flom Saturday morning. The boys, who are members of the troop, led by Calvin Macco, took 11 minutes to bring the water to a boil so that it bubbled over the top of the container.

Representatives of other patrols in the water boiling contest as well as in the knot tying, cooking and other contests scheduled for the valley council camporee this weekend at Riverside park, Neenah, will be named at the regular meeting of the troop Wednesday evening at the scout rooms, according to Donald Rusch, scoutmaster.

Forty are Graduated At St. Patrick School

Muskies are Biting In Distant Lakes but Winnebago's O. K. Too

Menasha—Distant pastures always look greener, according to an old saw, and far-away lakes have the biggest fish. So a party of Menasha fishermen last week went muskellunge fishing at Trout Lake north of Woodruff, Wis. They were successful for L. E. Lindquist, industrial arts instructor at Menasha High school, was up one day with his brother-in-law, Cason Mount, Crandon, Wis., and caught one 47 inches long and weighing 234 pounds.

They were fishing with A. J. Armstrong, R. G. DuCharme, N. A. Calder, all members of the Menasha High school faculty; Reuben Tuchscherer, alderman from the First ward, and Harry Leopold. That group caught two muskies and ate them at their camp.

In the meantime, however, Roy Kuester, Menasha, caught a 38 1/2 pound tiger muskellunge below the Menasha dam; Bill Meltz and Frank Altmann, Jr., Twelve Corners, caught a 20-pounder in Lake Winnebago; and a Milwaukee fisherman caught a 25-pounder out of Lake Butte des Morts.

Neenah Officials Are Disappointed By Bridge Denial

Further Action on Proposed Span Now Rests With Council

Neenah—The state highway commission's denying Neenah a state grant to finance a second bridge over the Fox river "was certainly unexpected and a great disappointment," Mayor Edwin A. Kalifahs said Saturday.

The announcement of the formal action of the state commission denying Neenah's request for state aid in building a second bridge was made Friday. The letter from the commission was received the following day.

The mayor's statement expressed the keen disappointment of other city officials and citizens on the outcome of Neenah's intensive and comprehensive campaign for a second bridge. A hearing before two members of the commission was held in Neenah last winter and even the commissioners commented on the exceptionally excellent way in which the city presented its case.

High hopes were maintained by city officials of securing the second bridge until Friday.

Outlook Is Gloomy

Mayor Kalifahs said that further proceedings rests with the council. The state commission's rejection "puts a black eye on any chance of securing WPA or PWA assistance," the mayor contended. "Of course, the city could build the bridge with its own funds and maybe secure aid from the county, but the cost would be tremendous."

In its letter, the state commission refused Neenah's request on the ground that a second bridge is not now necessary, but the letter didn't contain much information as to the commission's reasoning.

"The need for the second bridge is obvious," the mayor said, "and in this we are only contending that it was a local need."

Menasha Public Library Releases Five Fiction Works for Circulation

State Praises School Pheasant Rearing Plan

Menasha — First class summer reading will be found in five new fiction works released for circulation at Elisha D. Smith public library. Only one nonfiction book is being released. It is "Robbery by Mail" by Karl Baarslag. The law which makes it illegal to use the mails in cases of fraud has proved the downfall of many a racketeer who has suddenly found that the postal inspectors are after him or have caught up with him. The book is full of stories about every sort of racket, from mythical estates to medical frauds and sham accident schemes. It also has a complete story of the United States postal inspection service.

In the fiction group, a second novel by Ben Lucien Burman, "Blow for a Landing" was released. The book contains intimate sketches of life along the lower Mississippi. Good but slow-witted Willow Joe lives with his mammy and pappy through floods and storms and constant reversals but he always finds music in his cigar-box guitar, food by catching fish, and hope by looking for pearls or examining articles floating down the river. Folklore, superstition and river music are the atmosphere of this book.

"The Strongest Son" is by Barbara Stevens. This is one of those simple, straightforward stories that can be read with genuine pleasure. It describes the joys and sorrows of village life with vividness and reality.

Story Of Priest

The story of Father Pierre, a Catholic priest who in the eighties chose a cross road corner on the Minnesota prairie as a site for his church, is contained in "The Long Tomorrow" by Evelyn Wise. In spite of prejudice and suspicion, his work for the farmers went on—a cooperative cheese factory, a feeding outfit, purchasing fund, a school for the children, while he served as doctor, nurse and friend to all people.

"The Handsome Road" is by Gwen Bristow. In an earlier book, "Deep Summer" she told about those people who built a luxurious and beautiful civilization in the South. In her present novel she tells how that civilization was demolished and a different one made to take its place. That is the background of a dramatic story of two women and what those changes did to them.

"The Flying Yorkshireman; Novels by Erick Knight and Others" is a collection of five long short stories. They range from sheer fantasy to stark realism and are of particular interest to students of modern fiction form.

Religion Is Termed Vital To Progress

THE struggle in the world today is between atheistic materialism and the religious impulse, rather than between fascism and communism, democracy and totalitarianism, in the opinion of Alfred Galpin, instructor in French at Lawrence college, who spoke before Holy Name society of St. Joseph's church Sunday morning in the parish hall.

"Communism, if it were religious," Mr. Galpin stated, "wouldn't be half so destructive of culture and civilization as an atheistic materialism that purported to be eminently respectful of the rights of property."

This atheistic materialism governs a great deal of our life today, the speaker continued, and it talks a great deal of "progress," — always material progress — and calls the Catholic church reactionary.

"The Catholic faith as preached by the church has been the spinal column of the civilization of the white race for nearly two thousand years," Mr. Galpin said. "Its greatest gift is the miraculous one of creating humane civilization out of barbarism, poverty and discontent; a miraculous gift which entitles it to be accredited justly with eternal youth."

The speaker quoted from the Catholic journal, Commonweal, that "religion is at once the foundation and the only sure guarantee of the highest forms of civilization and culture."

In conclusion Mr. Galpin said, "It is the duty of Catholics to become more widely aware of their membership, not merely in this parish, but in the universal church; to strive actively to overcome the mistaken idea among socialists and many sincere friends of progress that the church is reactionary and opposed to social change. In that way they will be doing their bit toward making the church play a creative role in not merely saving civilization but in creating a new and more humane American civilization where the church will have a leading part."

WINDSORS OBSERVE FIRST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Apparently idyllically happy, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are shown in this exclusive Associated Press picture sporting with their Cairn terriers on their first wedding anniversary at their Chateau de La Croix at Antibes, France. They spent the day quietly, in contrast with their wedding day, when the eyes of the world were focused on them.

Fox River Area Over State Average In Number of Relief 'Employables'

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The Fox river valley counties are a little better situated than most others in the state in the employment of general relief clients, according to an analysis by the state public welfare department published Saturday.

While one family of every three receiving general relief in Wisconsin in April had no employable member who would be able to go out and hold a job if one were available, Brown, Outagamie, Manitowish and Winnebago counties in the immediate valley area reported substantially smaller percentages, as follows: Brown 26 per cent unemployed, Outagamie 28 1/2, Winnebago 32 1/2, and Manitowish 29 1/2 per cent.

Of the 50,455 families in Wisconsin on relief in April—the last month for which authoritative figures are available—17,000 were termed "unemployable" by the state relief office. Of the remainder, 8,400 families were considered "employable" but could not be certified to WPA because they were privately or self-employed but not making enough to support themselves entirely, were aliens and hence ineligible for federal works projects or were receiving unemployment compensation benefits.

Another 10,000 families had some member with WPA employment who was not making enough at the job to support his dependents at a "reasonable" standard, and hence local welfare agencies aided the family.

About 6,500 families were being transferred from the relief rolls to WPA in April, but had to accept some welfare assistance because they had not received their first WPA pay.

Another 8,555 families had some member well able to work and certified to a WPA job, but prevented from working by the fact that there

What's New at the Library

When Kurt Schuschnigg, former chancellor of Austria, began his book, "My Austria," some time ago, he may not have had any inkling of what was to happen to his beloved country by the time his book was published, but his writing such a book seems almost prophetic under present circumstances. The material in the book covers the history of that country up to the period of Dollfuss and Schuschnigg himself, and an introduction by Dorothy Thompson, well-known newspaper writer brings it up to date. Part autobiography, part political history, this story of the last chancellor of independent Austria describes the three distinct periods in the history of the Austrian state through which he has lived, namely, the old empire that died in 1918, the parliamentary-democratic republic which ended in 1933, and the Austria of yesterday, the period of Dollfuss and Schuschnigg. It gives a detailed study of the recent years in which the author played so important a part, tells of the February shootings, of the battle to keep Austria independent, and Dollfuss' assassination. Added is a complete record in diary form of Schuschnigg's stewardship, his domestic and foreign policies, the building of the army, his aims and hopes for Austria, and her economic progress up to the months just before Hitler's invasion.

"Mussolini in the Making" by Gaudens Megaro, a member of the department of history at Harvard university, is supposed to be the first complete and uncensored account of Mussolini's career as a young man. The author claims it is based on suppressed material gathered at personal risk.

Several travel books are among the new volumes at Appleton public library. Among them is "Scandinavia Beckons" by Amy Oakley, which describes the land of the midnight sun, of nomadic Lapps, glaciers and fjords; the land of ultramodern legislation, of pioneers in adult education, old-age pensions and cooperatives; the land of Sibelius, of architectural renaissance and ancient nobility. Drawings by Mr. Oakley and discussions of some of the personalities who have crossed the paths of the authors enliven the material. These personalities include Knut Hamsun, Selma Lagerlof, Kirsten Flagstad and Sibelius.

"Let's Visit Belgium" by Byron Steel is a travelbook which not only informs but actually guides and is equally valuable for the prospective traveler or the armchair tourist. Carefully planned itineraries for various periods of stay are suggested and a traveler's vocabulary of over 300 words is given in English and French.

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York — (P)—Stock market leaders turned in a losing performance today, with industrials yielding fractions to around 2 points and a few volatile issues more.

As in the past past several weeks, volume was conspicuous by its absence. Transfers were in the neighborhood of 350,000 shares, another one of the lowest full-day turnovers in about 4 years.

Steels, motors, farm implements, aircrafts, coppers and specialties lacked support throughout, although utilities and rails put up mild resistance.

Aircrafts were rather sickly despite dollar volume deliveries of airplanes and parts during the first four months of 1938 topped those for the corresponding 1937 period by more than $16,000,000.

Gold mining stocks did moderately well, with Homestake and McIntyre up a shade at one time.

Prominent on the slide were Bethlehem Steel, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Western Union, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont, Loew's, Union Carbide, Allis Chalmers, Kennecott and American Smelting.

Light Offerings Snag New York Curb Market

New York — (P)—Light offerings tapped down curb market quotations today for losses ranging from fractions to 4 points.

Utility issues and metals offered the least resistance. One of the widest losers near the final hour was Aluminum company, while declines running over 2 points were shown by American Gas and Electric, Gulf Oil, American Airlines, Niagara Hudson Power, Gulf Oil and Electric, and Standard Oil.

A handful of industrials resisted the downward to turn in modest gains. In this section were Sherwin Williams, United Milk Products and General Electric Ltd.

Today's Market At a Glance

New York — (P)—Stock heavy; industrials lead quiet setback.

Bonds lower; secondary rails under pressure.

Corn easy; light offerings concentrated on utilities.

Foreign exchange steady; sterling declines.

Cotton down; July liquidation; more favorable weather.

Sugar soft; commission house liquidation.

Coffee lower; trade selling.

Chicago—Wheat weak; profit taking.

Corn weak.

Cattle steady.

Hogs 10-15 higher.

Rail Group Weaknesses Lead Bond Market Lower

New York — (P)—Continued weakness in the rail group led the bond market to lower levels toward the closing hour today. Losses of a point or more up to 4 were liberal. A few utilities and industrials held up.

U. S. governments were irregular.

Among losers of a point or more were: Great Northern 4s of '46 "G," New York Centrals 5s and Convertible 4s; Northern Pacific 4s; Southern Pacific 4s of '65, '69 and '81 and Richmond 4s.

Modest gainers included Youngs-Iso-Shoot and Tube 4s; International Hydro Electric 6s; and Santa Fe 4s of '95.

Profit Taking Hurts Prices of Chicago Wheat

About Half of Saturday's Advance Lost in Selling on Market

Chicago — (P)—Losing about half of Saturday's abrupt advance, wheat prices today slumped as much as 2 1/2 cents a bushel.

Profit taking accounted for much of the selling but failure of the Liverpool market to reflect fully the recent upturn in domestic prices also was a factor.

There was a fractional rally from the day's lows just before the close but at the bell wheat was 1 to 2 1/2 cents below Saturday's finish, July 78-78 1/2, September 78 1/2-78 3/4, and October 78 1/2-78 3/4.

Corn was 1 1/4-1 1/2 lower, July 57 1/2-57 3/4, September 58 1/2-58 3/4, and October 58 1/2-58 3/4.

Sloan in Attack Upon Wage-Hour Legislation

New York — (P)—Sharply critical of pending wage-hour legislation, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of the General Motors corporation, predicted today automobile production next year would drop to the 1932 level—low point of the last depression—if the present trend continued.

In a letter accompanying quarterly dividend checks to 375,000 stockholders, he declared: "The so-called 'recession' has become, in fact, a 'depression'."

"The national economy has become unbalanced due to too rapid an increase in wages and too rapid a shortening of hours in many key industries—purchasing power has thus become unbalanced in relation to prices."

Sloan asserted passage of the wage-hour bill by congress would set one section of the nation against another, work undue hardship on small business units, create further unemployment and thus "penalize the very group it is supposed to help."

Legion Juniors Win and Lose in Practice Games

New London Nine Beats Oshkosh, 25 to 5; Loses to Kimberly

New London — The New London American Legion Juniors swamped an Oshkosh team 25 to 5 and lost a tight game to Kimberly, 4 to 1, in two practice sessions during the weekend. The Kimberly game was played there Saturday afternoon and the other was at the city diamond here yesterday morning.

A squad of 20 boys will work out again this afternoon before the final selection of the 15 traveling members for the Legion squad. Wednesday marks the close of official registration. More practice games will be scheduled until regular competition begins, according to Coach E. M. Donner.

A wild Oshkosh hurler and jittery infield gave the New London boys 10 runs in the first inning yesterday. Kenneth Poppy pitched the first three frames for New London, weakening in the third for three hits and four runs after facing four batters in the first two innings. Dave Stern shut the invaders out the next two frames and Roger Norder, Bear Creek, finished the game with the same record, the visitors tallying on an error for one more.

The Kimberly game was a tight contest with Junior Prah starting on the mound and Dave Stern winding up. New London got but three hits and allowed only four, though the pitchers handed out half a dozen free bases on balls. Houk scored for New London on Kimberly's only error in the fourth inning, when he was pushed through by two succeeding hits.

Author Of The Week

EMIL LUDWIG is publishing this week "Roosevelt: A Study in Fortune and Power." This high sounding opus is none other than the breathless serial he sold one of the more popular weeklies for a healthy sum a few months back. Herr Ludwig is, he claims, portraying Roosevelt "in human terms." The nasty old critics will say, quite likely, that more research and less humanity would make a better book.
